TWO STOKERS.

A STUDY IN CHARACTER.

LIFE ON A TRAMP.

(By J. F. M.)

When I awoke we were rolling heavily. It was our third day out from Rotterdam. We had rounded Land's End about 4 a.m., and now the great swell of the Atlantic came full on our beam—huge, deep waves, scarred with foam, unbroken by land since Mexico. They came boisterously, but with the slow regularity of battalions in attack. I looked at them, and knew that we should not reach Dublin that day.

I got out of my bunk and tried to dress, but a small tramp steamer can be as lively as a yearling. I abandoned the task at the stage which it had reached when I fell down for the fifth time. I was the only passenger, and the Dutch crew were not particular. So I lurched out of my cabin, into the spray, and clambered down a ladder to breakfast.

It was impossible. Everything slid as far as the wooden grid on the table would allow it. The Captain was in excellent form, and made jokes about fat pork. For the rest of the day I lay on my bunk, reading, while the engine-room telegraph registered "Full steam ahead"; and we rolled and wallowed in the swell, making a bare four knots.

Before dusk I went up on the bridge and looked out over the grey waste of waves. Not even a smudge of smoke broke the limitless monotony. I stood, braced, biting the cold wind, unwilling to believe the emptiness of the scene. It was the emptiness of the sky on a hopelessly wet day, but with an added activity which made it unreal. The man at the wheel stood motionless, muffled to the eyes. Sometimes he would move slightly, but only as a statue unsteady on its base. The second mate tramped up and down, his face hidden by his collar. It was eleven o'clock before we saw the Tuskar light, and ran under the shelter of the Irish coast.

I put on an old sweater and went down to the stoke-hole. A scorching glow rose through the rungs of the iron ladder, as though jealous of the wind outside. It was enveloping, tingling, like the first plunge into water. It seemed to fill the tall, narrow slot of a room to bursting, heating it, lighting it, isolating it almost unbelieveably from the bleakness of the sea. Yet it was dark; for the air was thick, and there was dust in the air—coal.

A SIMPLE SOUL.

A face was grinning up at me. I got to the bottom, and rubbed my hands on the seat of my trousers.

"Good evening," I said; "I've come to do some work."

The stoker laughed indulgently, and promised me some. He was a huge man, with a remarkably fine face. Standing there, leaning on his shovel, he did not look what he was—a workman of the best nordic type. Despite the grime on his face, and the light vest and trousers, which were his only clothes, I instantly saw him in the ranks of Napoleon's "Old Guard." Perhaps, it was his moustache.

We talked, but when he turned the illusion was gone. He had thrown open one of the iron doors of the furnaces, and stood in the glare mid-way between the dazzling circle and a pile of coal. His right hand gripped the handle of the shovel, his left the shaft, almost at the spade. There was a crunch as he dug into the coal. The shovel lifted, drew back a little, and then, with a long, smooth swing, shot up to the lip of the circle. He paused for a instant—as one does to watch the effect of a shot—and then swung back again into the coal. The motion was easy. It had the grace which only perfect rhythm can lend to violence. He repeated it again and again, never moving his feet—smoothly, almost as though he were working to great music. The end of every swing left him taut—every line of body straining towards the tip of his shovel, flung out after the coal, his right leg and his left arm straight, his body balanced, his head thrown up to the glare, the sweat running from his forehead. The muscles of his legs stood out under the strong folds of his trousers. He had become symbolic, a vital embodiment of all the force in the word "work." I saw, then, for a moment, what an artist must see when he conceives a great picture.

THE RELIEF.

Half-an-hour later he was relieved. I had learned much in that time—with other things, that stoking a furnace is skilled labour. The big man told me that for a year one must be content with breaking coal. Then only one begins to learn how to swing a shovel so as to land its burden nine feet away, over the heap of embers at the mouth of the furnace. There were only two stokers on that ship. They worked in shifts of eight hours. After that they would wash and sleep, and so on from Dublin to Belfast, to Amsterdam, and back to Rotterdam. It was hard work; but I learnt, too, how happy a man could be in such work. This man knew the contentment of using his strength. He had great simplicity and great charm.

The other stoker clattered down the iron ladder, and spat on the floor. He was a little man, cheerful enough now. His tiny cap had a long, arched peak, at once like the bill of a duck and the top-half of a drain pipe. He was very like a monkey. He raked out one of the furnaces with a furious, jerky energy, while I shovelled cinders into huge buckets. In a few minutes the stoke-hole was filled with dust, and even he had to stop to cough as the iron buckets rattled up into the blackness on their chains, to be emptied, hissing, into the cold sea. I could dimly see him struggling with the long rake. When he drove it forward, it seemed as though he were going to follow it into the furnace.

At last he had finished, and grinned at me through the grime. "Bye-an'-bye, plenty rough," he said. Even stokers are prone to found a conversation on the subject of the weather.

AMSTERDAM.

His interests, however, were not so limited. We talked of the ship, of its work, and of Holland. His wife and family lived in Amsterdam. He liked Amsterdam, but he did not like the ship or his work. One could see it from the way in which he handled his shovel. He attacked the coal, and there was almost a viciousness in his manner of flinging it into the furnaces. His pay, too, he thought wretched; but his discontent was not sullen. It was made bearable less by resignation than by an active vein of humour. Even a dog's life is better than the life of some men; and this little man found a curious amusement in the vicissitudes of the weather.

I asked him if he would go ashore at Dublin. No; they scarcely ever had time to leave the ship, until she was back in Rotterdam at the end of the fortnight. Sometimes it was longer. In winter, against a strong head-wind, she might not cover more than ten miles in a day. I tried to realise what such a life must be like. Fortnight after fortnight in the emptiness of the sea; Dublin, Belfast, Amsterdam, Rotterdam; with hard work unloading cargo at every port, and one night at home after every voyage. Once a year, perhaps, there is a change. The ship is driven into Falmouth by exceptionally heavy seas; but that is the only change. All the time the stokers are working in their eight-hour shifts, with nothing to break the monotony, and nothing variable but the strength of the wind. I began to wonder what pleasure their life could hold.

The little man answered my thoughts. He had been stoking a furnace, and, as he threw down his shovel, he grinned quite broadly. Then he spat at the heap of coal on the floor.

"Bye-an'-bye, Amsterdam," he said.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY.

Antrim Alabaster : Harry Furniss : Tennyson's Excuse : Easter Saturday. A Customs Complaint : A French Playwright : Hockey in Belgium. The Montalto Fete.

When is Easter Saturday?

Perhaps, the majority of people, on being requested to answer the above question, would say that to-day was Easter Saturday, and this view is supported by some of the railway companies, whose arrangements for this day are given under the heading of Easter Saturday.

I believe that they are in error, and that actually Saturday of next week is Easter Saturday. Easter Week begins on Sunday, and all the days of that week are entitled to the prefix "Easter."

The Saturday before Easter Day is correctly termed "Easter Eve," in earlier times being known as "Holy Saturday."

The English name Easter and the equivalent German, Ostern, are derived from the name of the feast of the Teutonic goddess, Ostera, which was celebrated by the ancient Saxons in the early spring.

Antrim Alabaster.

During a recent trip to Carrickfergus, I was introduced to one of the Antrim ways of increasing one's income. The neighbourhood is rich in gypsum, and the collection of it in its three forms—granular, fibrous and laminated—along the coast, is a part-time occupation which is by no means unproductive. The mass is sent to Belfast for export, but some of it finds its way into local possession in the shape of white and reddish trinkets and boxes. I was told that at one time there was also an industry in pipe-clay, which was exported to the pottery at Rostrevor. This clay lies beneath the submarine bog for the most part, and below it a further stratum of deep blue clay is also to be found, but the difficulty of working the measures renders them unprofitable. My guide showed me another substance of considerable interest, a green earth that comes from the district of Knockogh. It is exactly the same as the well-known green earth of Verona; and, while its constituence is doubtful, it seems to owe nothing of its colour either to copper or iron. It, too, indicates a coming and going of the sea; for it appears to be a marine soil, with much fossil shell in it.

Lough Morne.

While in the North, I was brought to see Lough Morne, really Lough Mor, the Big Lake. Some were successfully trawling pike, and others lobbing eels, but the scenery was nothing to speak of, though bird life was plentiful and attractive. The Lough is set high, and is reputed to be of great central depth. The severest frost fails to affect its centre, and it is thought to be spring-fed there. Its unusual position has set the legend-maker busy, but the tale I was told betrays "lateness" and the voice of the Saxon. A weary old man entered a town one nightfall, and from house to house begged and was refused shelter. "You'll get no lodging in this town the night, decent man," they ironically told him. "Town to-night," he replied, "'twill be a lough the morn." As the inhabitants were about to repair to repose, they were horrified to perceive water seeping up through the crevices of the flags, creeping in below the door, and presently eels about the bed legs. They made speed to save what they might. In vain; town, truck and people were all submerged, and, with the morning, there stood Lough Morne.

A Customs Complaint.

The other morning (writes a correspondent) I received a parcel from England. Affixed to it was a small printed label bearing the words: "Parcel Post. Opened for Customs Examination and duly closed again at the Post Office." This label, which had the gratifying feature that it was printed in English exclusively, was not, however, correct. The parcel certainly had been opened, but it was not "duly closed again." At least it was closed in such a manner that the contents were exposed to the gaze of an appreciative audience of curious people in the local post office. The parcel had been packed on the other side of the Channel with English thoroughness, and the officials who are responsible for the closing of parcels in the Free State Post Office should exercise just a little more care. It is bad enough to be compelled to pay a high rate of duty on goods which were free a few years ago, but when the garments are received soiled and creased, the taxpayer has a legitimate grievance.

Symbols of Easter.

The egg and the chick—one or both of which figure on nearly every Easter greeting card—have come to be almost universally accepted as the chief symbols of Easter, though we possess little definite knowledge of the origin of their association with the festival. The egg is most generally believed to represent the germs of fertility and life, and thus the resurraction and rebirth of the world in the springtime. The colouring on Easter eggs is supposed to represent the earth's putting aside her white mantle of snow to take on the bright hues of spring. Like the egg, the chick is symbolic of new birth in the springtime.

An Invitation to Brussels.

I am interested to learn that an Irish hockey side, probably, will take part in the "International Tournament" which is being held in Brussels from May 11th to May 18th, on the occasion of the centenary of the achievement of Belgian independence. The Irish Hockey Union has agreed to send a side, provided one can be found which, in the opinion of the Union, is sufficiently strong to be fairly representative. With a view to the selection of such a side, invitations have been issued to this year's Irish XI. and their substitutes. Mr. C. S. Waugh, the hon. secretary of the I.H.U., whom I met the other day, tells me that the acceptances so far are such as to promise a very useful side. Among those who have accepted, conditionally or unconditionally, are five or six of the team which won the Triple Crown this year, and several of the first reserves, including that very good hockey player, whether at centre half or inside left, Mr. M. H. Cork. At least two games will be played by the Irish team, and excursions have been arranged by the Belgian Hockey Association to various places of interest.

A Frenchman's Irish Play.

A few weeks ago I mentioned the production of a translated version of one of Lady Gregory's plays in France. Now I have to chronicle the early production at the Abbey Theatre of a Frenchman's play about Ireland. The playwright is well known in Dublin as the Commercial Attaché of France in the Free State, and, since his arrival in this country some years ago, he has busied himself to become acquainted with everything pertaining to its national life. Of course, at the root of international trade is the psychology of the nations trading between each other, and, in consequence, a commercial attaché can be more useful if he understands both ends.

M. Leprevost.

This new play is quite short, only a single act, and it deals with the Ireland of a century ago. Historical only in the sense that it deals with a period a little remote from the present, the play is said to be essentially romantic. It has received high praise from all who have read it in manuscript; the Abbey actors, particularly, are said to be enthusiastically in its favour. It is odd that a Frenchman should thus break what is really new ground in an Abbey Theatre play; there is so much scope in those days of Grattan's Parliament, and the first years of the Union, for "costume" comedy that Irish playwrights would seem to have overlooked a rich vein. M. Leprevost is very widely and favourably known in his own country as a novelist, being the author of at least a couple of novels that have been so popular as to have been in the "best-seller" class. As a novelist he uses a pseudonym, being known as André Mervil.

"Suspense."

A friend, who has seen Mr. Sydney Morgan in Mr. Patrick MacGill's war play, "Suspense," at the Duke of York's Theatre, tells me that that fine Dublin actor has seldom played better. "Suspense," he adds, is likely to have a good run, although there are no female parts in it and it gives an almost purely rank and file view of trench warfare.

Mr. MacGill, of course, had considerable war experience, and has succeeded in transferring to the stage all the realism of the dug-out. He joined the Army on the outbreak of hostilities, and was wounded at Loos. Now, in his fortieth year, he has still the youthful appearance and curly hair of the young Donegal navvy who was hailed as a new star in the literary London of a score of years ago. An article, which his navvy comrades persuaded him to send to a London editor, brought him an invitation to Fleet street, but, as he says himself, newspaper reporting in London was not his easiest or most successful job.

Tennyson's Excuse.

There have been many stories of Tennyson's blunt replies. Perhaps, the best of these was his extraordinary reply to a young lady, who had been trying to amuse the poet. Tennyson was particularly absent-minded that day, and, at last, there was a painful silence. Suddenly he remarked, in a matter-of-fact voice: "Madam, your stays are too tight." She, in some trepidation, replied: "No, I assure they are not." "Yes, they are," contradicted Tennyson, "I can hear them creaking."

This was too much, and the discomfited lady fled, only to find, to her horror, that Tennyson was pursuing her. At last he cornered her and said graciously: "Madam, I must apologise; it was not your stays that were creaking, but my new braces."

The Montalto Fete.

The Countess of Clanwilliam once more is holding a grand fête in aid of the County Down Infirmary in her residence, Montalto, Ballynahinch. The date has been arranged for the 16th and 17th of May. Last year Lady Clanwilliam's untiring efforts for the same cause were substantially rewarded, but this year it is hoped that the fête will be quite different from any ever held in Northern Ireland before. Far and wide, people are taking a practical interest in the scheme, as the good cause for which it is being organised appeals to all and sundry.

Interesting Exhibits.

There will be many things of interest at the fête. The Queen has set an admirable example to everybody by lending six fans of historic interest for exhibition. This is believed to be the first occasion on which Queen Mary has lent anything for such a cause in the North of Ireland. Many of the oldest families in Ulster are contributing some of their most treasured possessions, the value of which cannot be estimated. For instance, there will be on view several miniatures of the Stuart family, sent in by Miss Boyd, of Ballycastle, and some articles which belonged to Nell Gwynn, also the property of Miss Boyd. A pair of jewelled stirrups worn by Schomberg at the Battle of the Boyne, owned by Mr. W. Young, of Finaghy, Cullybackey, are certain to attract much attention.

An Old Cork Caricature.

I recently came across a clever caricature by McDaniel, a Cork artist, who depicted this scene in the early part of the nineteenth century. On the left of this picture of Cork life a hunchback painter is shown decorating a tobacconist's sign—the well-known "Red Indian"; then a blind fiddler with his family, the wife a ballad singer thrilling forth a "sorrowful lamentation." Near at hand is a mannish-looking female teaching the child in her arms to enter into the spirit of the music. A youth is seen meditatively "picking up" the tune on his flute; a vegetable woman shouts her wares in the background, and a man with a basket of turf pauses to listen. The signboard of the house on the right is a specimen of the quaint form of advertisement common to the period. It runs as follows:—

> Curious flowr roots shrubs and posies
> Greenhouse piants and foreign rosies
> Garning in GENL. dun in stile
> Inquire within from Patk. Doyl.
> N.B. Dry Lodgings.

"Dry Lodgings" were, presumably, lodgings without the usual "board."

Harry Furniss.

I am reminded that it was in Anne street, Wexford, that Harry Furniss, the famous Punch caricaturist, was born in 1854, and there that he spent the first ten years of his life. His father was a civil engineer who had come to Ireland to superintend the erection of gasworks, and was a Yorkshireman, while his mother hailed from Newcastle-on-Tyne, but was of Aberdonian extraction. On his family's removal to Dublin, he was put to school at Wesley College. His capacity for drawing early appeared, and he became the self-appointed editor of a schoolboys' Punch. His first appearance in a public sheet was when Mr. A. I. Sullivan gave him the opportunity to contribute to Zozimus, a paper that took the place of Punch in Ireland, but kept clear of political personalities. His Irish studies are remarkable for their capture of character values, and that capacity for making at once a caricature and a revealing portrait never deserted him.

The Police.

It is just over a hundred years ago since the organisation of the police force, as we know it to-day, was accomplished. Before 1829, although local acts had provided police systems here and there—the Dublin Metropolitan Police, for instance, originated in 1808—the state of large cities was deplorable. The parish watchmen, who were inefficient and corrupt, were the citizens' only means of protection, assisted in cases of serious crime by the "Bow street Runners," or "Robin Redbreasts"—so styled from their scarlet waistcoats—from whom the modern detective is directly descended.

Peelers.

Everyone knows why the nicknames of "bobbies" and "peelers" were given to the new guardians of law and order, but it is not so generally known that an Irishman, a native of Dublin, claimed to be the author of the plan on which the new system was founded. V. G. Dowling, an Irish journalist living in London, stated that, in his publication, "Bell's Life in London," he had published a proposed scheme with all details, such as the names to be given to the officers—inspectors, sergeants, and so forth—two years before Sir Robert Peel introduced the self-same plan in the House of Commons.

TRINITY COLLEGE NOTES.

THE COMMERCE SOCIETY.

The College Park has just undergone its annual spring metamorphosis, and the green seats which for so many months surrounded the football field now face the cricket pitch. Battered football boots have been thrown to the tops of wardrobes, there to grow hard and dry in oblivion until October, when those of their owners who have not become staid curates will require them again.

All attention from now on centres on the discreet and gentlemanly game of cricket. Already the nets are up, and early enthusiasts may be seen getting their eye in. It is not very long since a certain gentleman, renowned for his "slogging," lifted a ball from the nets out into Nassau street, and shattered a plate glass window in an insurance company's office, valued, it is said, at £17 10s.

Cricket appears to exercise some peculiar attraction for elderly clergymen, who haunt the Park during the long summer evenings, strolling sedately beneath the trees. The undergraduate population sprawls joyously on rugs, sunning itself, smoking, and reflecting on the one great advantage of cricket—that it requires no heroism on the part of its spectators, as winter football too often does. The Provost and Professor R. M. Gwynn are regular spectators.

AN OPENING MEETING.

The Commerce Society is getting well under way, and will hold its inaugural meeting on the 23rd of May. Its Vice-Presidents include Mr. John Good and Dr. K. C. Bailey, and the first Auditor is Mr. H. S. Knott. Mr. Knott's knowledge of commerce is by no means entirely theoretical; for he has been associated with the business side of the "College Pen" since its foundation. He has also appeared in several plays performed by the Dramatic Society. He was seen late one night this week struggling with the problem of transport. He was moving his furniture from the Bay to Number Nine on a handcart, finding considerable difficulty in simultaneously supplying the motive power and keeping his possessions from falling off.

Mr. H. S. Knott.

The Treasurer of the Commerce Society is Mr. W. McKee, and Mr. D. H. Verschoyle is the Secretary.

Mr. John Purser has departed to the University of Greifswald, in Pomerania, where he has secured a lectureship in English and Philosophy. While in Trinity his hobbies included smoking villainous plug tobacco and adventuring down the quays in a false beard—perhaps to secure material for a novel. A Scholar and Moderator in Philosophy and fluent linguist, he has a very keen sense of humour, with which he will, doubtless, delight the good people of Pomerania.

I hear that a new edition of the Trinity College, Dublin, Association Register is to appear at the end of this month. It will contain some ten thousand names and addresses of Trinity men. This book will represent a tremendous amount of drudgery on the part of two secretaries, Doctor K. C. Bailey and Captain Brew Kennedy. Starting from the year 1850, Army Lists, Medical Registers, Clerical Directories and similar publications have been systematically combed, and thousands of letters have been despatched. The Association now numbers over two thousand six hundred members. Last week five cheques arrived in a single day from Kenya Colony from Old Trinity men wishing to join.

Immediately after Easter the usual round of examinations will start again, and the grinders' classes are already filling up. The Scholarship examination is rapidly approaching, and the aspirants for the velvet cap grudge every minute wasted on eating or sleep. They will not breathe freely again until Trinity Monday.

FRANCE'S IRISH TROOPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Anything throwing light on the doings of France's Irish troops in peace and war should be of interest. That they were styled troops of the King and Queen of England, at any rate during the lifetime of James II., is, I think, clear. De Seurches writes after the Battle of Marsaglia: "On ne saurait donner des louanges à toutes les troupes du Roi et de la Reine d'Angleterre, qui ont fait des miracles." That they insisted on wearing the red uniform, the Stuart's livery, is I think admitted. Their prowess in war is well known to students of history, and, as the following throws some light on their doings in peace, it is at the service of your readers:—

The following letter, dated 19th March, 1740, from the Military Commander at Bethune to the Secretary of State for War, is of great interest. After referring to the case of two officers of the garrison who were sent to prison for poaching and staying out without permission, and to complaints by the surrounding nobility about poaching by officers of the garrison, he writes:—

"As I am under the necessity, Monseigneur, of going into these details of the chase, I beg that you will be pleased to inform me of the intentions of the King touching greyhounds, because the garrison is very subject to have Irish regiments, which always have them in plenty, to such a point that I have seen a simple sergeant of Bulkeley's Regiment of infantry have nine of them for himself, all en pension on the streets. The other Irish regiments have about as many, and Fitzjames's Cavalry, which is actually in garrison here at the present time, while it does not possess nearly so many, is still well furnished with them. They say that these greyhounds are still the descendants of the twenty thousand which they disembarked in France in 1689, when the nation followed King James, their master, here. Some regiments have entirely depopulated the whole neighbourhood of hares. As I do not eat them myself, I take no interest in the matter, but I do not believe, Monseigneur, that it is the intention of the King that the officers of his troops should have such a large number of these animals; and it will be desirable, for the benefit of the noblemen in the neighbourhood of the places de guerre, that His Majesty gives an order enjoining commanders not to receive them. Although there are not a great number in this garrison, 117 hares have been killed within two months by these foreign greyhounds, and I have no doubt that in the whole district half as many more. I have only discovered this within the last fortnight, and have wished to remedy the matter, but uselessly, because the officer who wishes to hunt leaves the place as though he were going for an ordinary stroll, while his servant holds his dogs fifty yards from the gate. At the sound of a whistle given by the officer, to which the dogs are accustomed, the servant looses them, the dogs run as though the devil had got them, and no sentinel or ensign can stop them, and still less shoot them, because of the passer-by whom one might cripple in firing on the dogs, and the officer brings them back in the same way. I know well that I am in my rights in having them shot, but I should be regarded as a barbarian by the whole garrison, a reputation which one does not wish to acquire when one does not like hare and is no hunter."

One would like to know if the "twenty thousand" referred to men or greyhounds. They can hardly refer to greyhounds, and it is possible that what this non-hunting commander meant to convey was that these greyhounds were the descendants of dogs brought over by the twenty thousand followers of King James.

Incidentally, this exodus of the Jacobites not only denuded the country of the national dog, but drained it of its best Nordic elements.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN F. BAILY.

SIR RALPH FORSTER, BART.

The death of Sir Ralph Collingwood Forster, Bart., Deputy Lieutenant of Surrey, occurred at his residence, The Grange, Mulgrave road, Sutton, on Thursday, after a long illness. Sir Ralph, who was eighty years of age, had a sudden illness when in Egypt some five years ago, and had been more or less an invalid since. Greatly interested in hospital work, Sir Ralph gave over £30,000 for the extension of University Hospital, London. He also made large gifts to Sutton Hospital. He was appointed High Sheriff of Surrey in 1906, and Deputy-Lieutenant in 1909.

MR. JOHN T. HUDSON.

The death took place on Wednesday of Mr. John T. Hudson, of 89 Pembroke road, Dublin, at the age of 79. Mr. Hudson, who was for forty years Under-Sheriff of the County Waterford, came to live in Dublin in 1914, taking up residence at 31 Fitzwilliam place, from which he removed later to Pembroke road. Mr. Hudson, whose wife pre-deceased him nine years ago, had many friends in Dublin and in the County Waterford, where his family was very well known. He was a keen sportsman, hunting regularly in his younger days, and was very fond of yachting. He was a member of the Royal Dublin Society. In spite of his advanced age, Mr. Hudson was very active until shortly before his death.

MISS CARRIE DONALD.

Miss Carrie Donald, a well-known Scottish operatic singer, who was engaged by the late Sir Arthur Sullivan as one of the leaders for his Gilbert and Sullivan operas some forty years ago, has died at North Berwick. She appeared before King Edward, then Prince of Wales, at Windsor Castle, when she took the part of Gianetta. Miss Donald, who was 60 years of age, and the wife of Mr. Thomas Lamb, vocalist, had figured prominently on many Scottish platforms.

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Friday.

The Northern Unionist leaders are so busily engaged repelling Nationalist attacks regarding extravagance in the administration of the Six Counties that very little time can be given to the consideration of Mr. Snowden's Budget proposals. In any case, what they may think about it would make no difference, as the Government will have to accept the decision of Westminster, whether it be good, bad or indifferent. It is in such vital matters that the limited powers and jurisdiction of the Craigavon Cabinet are demonstrated. The circumstances are such that Northern Ireland is helpless, and must accept what the Labour Government considers is best for it as an "integral part" of the United Kingdom.

Most people consider the Budget in the light of self-interest, and it is worthy of note that at yesterday's meeting of the Belfast Branch of the Manufacturers' Agents' Association, the President, Mr. Hugh Hobson, J.P., said that "the feeling of the man-in-the-street is that, after all, it is not a bad Budget." An awkward point is that the rate of income tax is to be 4s. 6d. in the £, which compares unfavourably with the 3s. per £ in the Free State, and people who do not fully appreciate the position are inquiring why the Northern Government cannot fix its own rate for the province. In all directions the expense of government is increasing—about £9,000,000 for a population similar to that of Glasgow—and the ratepayers are wondering what the ultimate result will be.

WORK INSTEAD OF "DOLES."

The wisdom of providing work for the unemployed, instead of granting them outdoor relief, was proved by a report which was submitted to the Belfast Board of Guardians this week. It will be recalled that, in consequence of exceptional distress, the Guardians were urged by the Home Office to undertake relief schemes, and after a great deal of friction this was done as a result of negotiations between the Board, the Ministry and the Belfast Corporation, which has always been ready and willing to co-operate in such undertakings. By this means poverty was alleviated and the respect of the workers maintained, while the rates were conserved. During the half-year ended 30th March last, 458 men—or, including dependents, 2,217 persons—were granted assistance, and, of these, 392 able-bodied men were given work under the Corporation relief schemes, the total money paid in lieu of relief being £6,076 12s. 6d.

Since the start of the scheme the total number of men who found employment elsewhere, and were consequently removed from special relief, was 336, of whom 114 were placed in jobs through the Labour Exchanges. Within the past twelve months, owing to the wages paid to 683 men instead of special relief, and by the absorption of the 336 mentioned above, the payment by the Guardians of weekly allowances to the extent of £22,567 per annum was saved. Moreover, the City Surveyor paid a tribute to the good work done by these men. It will thus be seen that there is something in the "dignity of labour," and that most people prefer work to charity or the "dole."

HARD HIT LINEN TRADE.

The linen trade has again been severely hit by United States legislators, and it would appear as if the Irish fabrics were to be barred altogether by prohibitive tariffs. Much uneasiness is felt in Belfast at the action of the American Joint Parliamentary Committee in deciding to reject the Senate's amendment which restored the old duty in respect of certain linen goods. The Northern Government has helped in the recent publicity campaign in the United States, and the Irish Linen Guild, together with the Scottish Association, has done much to satisfy requirements on the other side of the Atlantic, but it is evident that American interests are the first consideration with "Uncle Sam."

The rejection of the Senate's amendment will have the effect of subjecting Ulster linen to a higher duty in America, and inquiries made in Belfast show that the plain end of the industry will be involved more than the damasks. While hostility may be expected from the United States in order to protect their own trade, it is felt here that Australia, in also increasing her tariffs against Irish linen, notwithstanding the kindly representations of the Prime Minister when visiting that country recently, has shown a disposition to disregard the movement for co-operation in business within the Empire.

A SOCIALIST UTOPIA.

The Northern Ireland Labour Party evidently thinks the time is ripe for the coming of a new golden age in more senses than one. The seventh annual conference of the organisation is to be held next week in Belfast, and the agenda provides some interesting items. A minimum wage for all municipal workers at £4 per week, with a fortnight's holiday every year with pay, is demanded, and the establishment of a seven-hour day and a forty-hour week is also advocated. A suitable appearance is further desired, so that a regular supply of clothes and boots must be available for those engaged in outdoor work. There are other modest proposals, such as "the establishment of an Irish Workers' Socialist Republic, based upon workers' ownership and control of all the means of production and the distribution of wealth."

On the other hand, several of the suggestions are commendable, such as the speeding up of the building of new schools, provision for a greater number of playing grounds and fields for children, an extension of the scheme for the provision of child-welfare centres and a few others dealing with social services. No method is indicated by which all these Utopian schemes—particularly those referring to work and wages—are to be realised, but the reference to a "Workers' Republic" shows the wild cat nature of some of the proposals. They are suspiciously like what would come from Soviet Russia, and will probably be turned down by the general body of delegates.

THE BIG MOTOR RACE.

Arrangements for the International Tourist Trophy Race over the County Down Circuit on 23rd August are proceeding satisfactorily. A part of the roadway is to be widened at the expense of the Government, and the course will be as perfect as possible for the fixture. At a conference held at Stormont Castle yesterday between an official of the R.A.C. and local representatives—at which Viscount Craigavon was present—an informal discussion took place, and a committee was formed representing all the interests concerned, the course afterwards being inspected.

For this year's race forty-four entries have already been received, and more are expected before the list is finally closed. It is not thought, however, that the number of competing cars will reach last year's total, but most of the well-known drivers, including Carraciola, Captain Malcolm Campbell, Lord Howe and Mr. H. Fronteras, together with Ivanovsky, Campari and Varzi, will be present. A "record" crowd of spectators is anticipated, and preparations are already being made to provide for the multitude.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

SARAH JENNINGS.

TO the amateur in history the favourite is always far more interesting than his Royal master—Wolsey has been more popular with posterity than the bear-baiting and polygamous Henry. So, in these memoirs, the dominant force throughout is Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, Lady of the Queen's Wardrobe and (self-appointed) Pilot of the Queen's Mind. For many years she was the ruling power in the Court of Queen Anne and guided the activities of the Sovereign as she found most suitable for her own ends.

Queen Anne, as woman, but not, perhaps, as Queen, appears to have had no individuality worthy of the name. This generation remembers her chiefly by the most-proverbial statement that now she is dead. The remarks of the Duchess with reference to her, although they are enlivened with a certain spiteful wit, bear out the impression that the fact of her demise is the one high light in her existence. She says about her:

"In matters of ordinary moment her discourse had nothing of brightness or wit; and on weightier matters she never spoke but in a mood, and had a certain knack of sticking to what had been dictated to her, to a degree often very disagreeable, and without the least sign of understanding or judgment."

The Duchess's spite is visible all through to a greater or less degree. Often it becomes outrageous.

"... great as was the passion of her grief, her stomach was greater; for that very day he died, she ate three very large meals, so that one would think that, as other persons' grief takes away their appetites, her appetite took away her grief."

From such a blatantly soured writer it is hardly logical to look for an accurate account of affairs. The historian will find it difficult to decide what allowance ought to be made for the Duchess's private opinions before we can arrive at a stratum of hard facts. The true value of the memoirs, indeed, lies in the insight which they give into the personality of a masterful and capable woman. As a picture of contemporary life and manners, even if prejudiced, they are valuable; as the revelation of an extraordinary character they are doubly valuable.

A HANDBOOK FOR AMATEURS.

THE ideal "producer" is born, but there is a lot that he will have to learn about the business before he can be classed as proficient. At his birth he may have been given a genius for production, but if he is to be known as a "producer" that genius must be trained and embodied in technical knowledge. There is no "short cut"; in the theatre the longest way round is the shortest way home. In this excellent little book Mr. C. B. Purdon sets out the technical processes so clearly and with such detail that it is certain to become the standard handbook for amateur dramatic societies. Occasionally, when the very slipshod methods of some professional producers and actors are obtruded, the need for a similar book for professionals becomes manifest. Some of them, therefore, might read this book with advantage.

Mr. Purdon is one of the best-known English critics of the drama; also he is an amateur producer who has achieved some fame in his theatrical producing ventures. He acted as producer to the Welwyn Players when they won the Howard de Walden Cup in London, and the David Belasco Cup in New York, three years ago for the best production by a "Little Theatre Group." It was a great achievement to go to the United States and bring home the Belasco Cup, to win which all amateur theatrical groups in the States strain every nerve.

The author, therefore, knows his business, and his book will be of the utmost assistance to every amateur dramatic society.

FARMING IN CANADA.

THIS book about Canada only bears out what so many Irishmen and women have written home about the heart-breaking farming conditions in that great country, where a bumper crop of wheat may be destroyed in a single night by hail or storm, and even the effort to grow the all-important "wind break" of young trees may fail again and again.

The author, after her tour of Canadian farms, has a real grievance against the artistic posters that lure young men and women—worse still, middle-aged men and women—out to the prairie, where so many hearts are broken. Go West by all means is her message, but before you go count the cost, and decide whether you can bear the hardships which you will be called upon to endure. If you are a woman, count the cost twice. "Make it possible for them to come home now and then," Miss Harrison urges, and one thinks of the letters that one has seen, the cry of some exile for a sight of home. The painful saving up for such a trip goes on, then the crop is destroyed once more, and the savings go to pay the ordinary expenses of the farm. Miss Harrison does not deny that the prairie calls or that it is loved by many. Count the cost first, not afterwards, she urges, and her advice must appeal to the common-sense that lurks in every nature, however romantic. This is an intersting, well-written book, and one that was needed.

THE DUBLIN REVIEW.

IN its April number, which now is available, The Dublin Review gives us ten articles of high standard. One especially is excellent. Mr. W. H. Shewring discusses the various lessons that can be learned from a study of the Greek Anthology. He has treated the subject simply, and has illustrated his points with good translations. Generally, the whole number is of the highest class.

"THE TIGER'S" CLAW.

IT is a great pity that the death of two of the greatest Frenchmen in history should be followed by the revelation of a rather sordid squabble between them. Before Marshal Foch died he made certain statements concerning M. Clemenceau which gained wide publicity in Europe and the United States. "The Tiger" was not the man to allow such criticisms to go unanswered, and in a posthumous volume he makes bitter and violent attacks upon Foch, not only seeking to disprove the Marshal's charges against him, but accusing the great soldier of conduct which, if it were true, would shatter much of the public's belief in the Marshal's prowess. Clemenceau always was a controversialist. He never spared anybody—not even himself—and his unmerciful castigation of Foch must not be taken too seriously. Yet the book throws a rather grim light on events dans les coulisses during that last terrible year of the war.

"THE TIGER."

Undoubtedly, it was Clemenceau who secured the appointment of Foch as Generalissimo of the Allied forces. Not very long before the famous meeting at Doullens he had been limogé, and if Clemenceau, aided and abetted by the late Sir Henry Wilson, had not insisted on his recall and reinstatement, unity of command never might have been achieved—assuredly Ferdinand Foch never would have led the Allied forces to victory. For that achievement Clemenceau deserved, and obtained, the highest credit.

Now, as it seems, Foch was anything but the beau idéal of a French soldier. "The Tiger" depicts him as a rather petulant, egotistical arriviste, fond of asserting his own authority, but impatient, and sometimes even disobedient, when required to submit to the authority of his superiors. Indeed, if one was to take all that Clemenceau says au pied de la lettre, one would be forced to the conclusion that Foch was a thoroughly bad soldier, that his appointment as Commander-in-Chief was a sorry blunder, and that the war was won, not because he showed any particular form of military genius, but because Georges Clemenceau was behind him all the time urging him on, and insisting on the adoption of a fighting policy.

"The Tiger" writes at first more in sorrow than in anger. "Ah, Foch," he says, "I bear you a grudge for laying your belated petard at the gate of history and wounding me in the back." One gathers the impression that his chief complaint against the Marshal is the fact that Frenchmen should quarrel while the German enemy still is active; and Clemenceau believed firmly that his peace treaty was ruined by subsequent concessions to the hated Boche. His abuse, towards the end of the book, becomes as wearisome as it is indiscriminate. Poincaré gets as much castigation as Foch, and everyone who is not a mere creature of "The Tiger" comes under the biting lash of his invective.

History will decide the case between Foch and Clemenceau, just as it will resolve all the personal disputes of the post-war period; but one grieves to discover that behind the splendid façade of unity, against which the might of Prussia hurled itself to destruction, men of outwardly heroic calibre were consumed by petty spites and jealousies while the struggling millions in the trenches poured out their lives in vain.

THE WAY OF AN EAGLE.

CÆSAR'S Commentaries, a handbook for soldiers, is primarily the work of a statesman; General von Seeckt's essay in political science, "The Future of the German Empire," in essence is military. He does not prophesy, but offers an objective, a unified Imperial State with Prussia, an unobtrusive Kronios swallowing the rest. He lectures the staff college of statesmen and sends them to parade the people. The future of Germany, however, belongs to the people, and haply they will not fall in with the General's ideas.

Nevertheless, he makes valuable points, if one divorces them from his general tendency. It is well to hear that social services must be limited to the means of the State, and that there is a law of diminishing returns that works with the taxpayer. His defence of mutual aid societies against the dole system, since they keep the incentive to individual effort is defensible, and his conversion of the latent socialism of Bentham's "greatest good of the greatest number" into the "highest well-being of the sum," makes for sound thinking. His advocacy of decentralisation as a check upon the usurpation of government by Parliament, with a rider warning against the Charybdis of municipal bureaucracy, is timely. Timely, too, is his observation anent the tendency towards a dull mediocrity in State educational schemes, and the unfairness of ignoring the wishes of parents in that connection, who, after all, provide the funds. The substitution of live justice for dead codes of local police for minor regulations and of a centralised C.I.D. for major crimes is a further sane recommendation, and he remarks justly that multiplication of petty laws brings law and police into disrepute.

General von Seeckt's ideal is the old one of autarkeia, the self-sufficient State. Agriculture, as a permanent State pensioner, he considers to be doomed, but holds that co-operation, with temporary protection, can make agriculture self-supporting and the State self-fed. Where the State lives on dual sources of income from field and factory, this end is doubtful. We may note his warning against a doctrinaire splitting of large holdings into small holdings—the test is pragmatic — and against rash home colonisation as a strain on patience and pocket. This last, for Britain, would involve all planting schemes that are not backed by individual enterprise. He advocates standardised production from the source, though its value primarily lies in marketing and ought not to be pressed to extremes. Von Seeckt's self-sufficing State has its difficulties. He prefers to run upon them rather than to turn to the alternative of international economic organisation, which, with "pacificism," he thinks to be a war product, and transient. Our view differs. Both ideals seem to have a pre-war origin, to have been interrupted by the war, and now to be winding to a partial realisation. For the author war is the end. Naturally, therefore, he wishes to have the safest background for a war. The State is to organise peace so that its instruments may be turned to war with the least difficulty. He gives a wooing word to art, science and spiritual values, but his eye is on the frontiers. Yet the German Eagle is at least likely to descend from its eyrie and hob-nob on the plain as to bite its talons, a sad and self-sufficient bird, in a chronic state of Prussian blues watching the Rhine.

It is no light work to unpack the Teutonic portmanteau words. Mr. Oakley Williams has done his work well; one term alone, a "schedularisation," stuck in the throat.

"THE WHITE COAT."

GENERAL KRASSNOFF'S book is the last of a series of semi-realistic novels dealing with modern Russia. Regarded as two episodes in a long prose epic, the volume is sufficient. As a novel in itself, however, its faults are manifest. It is separated into halves, each of which is connected with the other only by the slightest of links.

The plot centres round the destruction of Communist power in Russia by a White organisation, culminating cheerfully with a report that the Double Eagle flies once more over the Kremlin. The first half forms a fascinating, if rather horrible, story: in it a young girl, daughter of a renegade Tsarist, agrees to sell her soul to the devil, in the hope that he will assist her to deliver Russia. She is deluded into attending a Black Mass, which is described in horrible detail.

After that episode, however, the tale degenerates into a succession of impossible situations. We cannot believe that Bolshevik genera's could be overawed by one strong personality as easily as General Krassnoff suggests; indeed, while we hold no brief for Soviet Russia, it is hard to conceive that her conditions are quite so appalling as we are led here to suppose. As a counterblast to Soviet films, this book may effect something in some minds, but its artistic value is little. The translation is excellent.

RECENT FICTION.

IN "Best Detective Stories of the Year 1929," published by Faber and Faber, we have some twenty tales arranged in alphabetical order of authorship, and by a freak of chance this arrangement roughly presents them in order of merit. Mr. G. K. Chesterton's "The Purple Jewel" is not written in his best vein; Chestertonian obiter dicta are ponderous and frequent, but the theme is thin and unworthy of the creator of Father Brown. The whole collection maintains a fair average, but clearly 1929 was not a vintage year.

"The Man," by Will Scott, we can recommend confidently. The plot is ingenious, and Disher, if a thorough-going bounder, at least is a clever detective and something of a "character."

On the other hand, "The Bellmer Mystery," by Ben Ames Williams, while it has no outstanding demerit, is dull. The venue is laid in an American newspaper office, the staff of which seems to have been engaged largely for its unattractive qualities. Nevertheless, the book is adequate for a train journey.

IN this novel of four hundred and seventy-three pages we are given a series of pictures of post-war life in Vienna during the inflation period.

Herr Neumann depicts with relentless realism the methods by which the unscrupulous "profiteers" amassed vast fortunes, by smuggling, speculation, dealing in damaged food-stuffs, and buying up the estates of starving land-owners at a mere fraction of their value, while, owing to the difficulty of obtaining work, respectable girls and women could only keep their families from starvation by the price of shame.

Ex-criminals, by bribing the police, were enabled to ply a lucrative trade in pandering to the vices of the wealthy and by the sale of drugs.

With the exception of the pre-war chapters the story is like a hideous nightmare, but the terrible tragedy of that time holds the reader enthralled.

SOMEWHERE in a mountain fastness, in the midst of a Syrian desert, there existed a tribe that worshipped a gigantic peacock god, whose rites demanded the sacrifice of a white woman at every full moon.

Members of this cult were prepared to pay enormous prices for victims for sacrificial purposes, and certain avaricious Englishmen were engaged in a form of white slave traffic for procuring them in London.

The "Cavaliers of Death" were a band of adventurous men, who had sworn to stamp out this hideous organisation, and this story relates how one of the "Cavaliers," under the name of Jim Ratiker, rescued the beautiful Lois Gilmour, first from an uncongenial marriage, and later from the sacrificial altar of the peacock-headed god. Mrs. Rosita Forbes has given us a real thriller, which, in spite of its improbability, holds our interest from start to finish.

GOOD FRIDAY IN DUBLIN.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

Most of the business houses in Dublin were closed yesterday, and the religious character of the day was observed by large congregations attending Services in the various churches in the city. Services were held in St. Patrick's Cathedral in the morning and in the afternoon, the anthems being "Call to remembrance" (Farrant) and "Thy rebuke. . . . Surely He hath borne our griefs" (Handel); and also in Christ Church Cathedral, where the anthem in the morning was "O Saviour of the world" (Goss), and in the evening "My God, my God" (Mendelssohn).

Special Easter music was sung in the other churches, and recitals of sacred music were given in several in the evening. In Zion Church, Rathgar, an augmented choir sang "Hear my prayer" (Mendelssohn). The soloists were Madam Borel, Mrs. Sydney Jameson, Mr. R. H. Scott and Mr. A. Harrison. There were also selections from "The Messiah." Selections from "The Messiah" were also rendered in Clontarf Parish Church, the soloists being Miss Olive Gilbert (contralto) and Mr. Geoffrey Quaile (tenor).

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S CHURCH.

The three hours' Service held yesterday at St. Bartholomew's Church, Dublin, was conducted by the Most Rev. Dr. Gregg, Archbishop of Dublin. There was a large congregation, the majority of whom remained throughout the entire time. His Grace gave an exposition of the Seven Words from the Cross, with an introductory and concluding address. The hymns chosen were appropriate to the sacredness of the subject, and were joined in by the whole congregation, led by a voluntary choir.

CHRIST CHURCH, LEESON PARK.

SERMON BY THE BISHOP OF OSSORY.

The Bishop of Ossory, the Right Rev. Dr. Day, was the preacher at a special Service at Christ Church, Leeson Park, on Thursday night at 8.15. There was a very large congregation.

Taking as his text, "A Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief" (Isaiah liii., 3), Dr. Day said that nothing in life chastened, purified and strengthened the moral character of man as suffering did. The man or woman who suffered gained the power to help other people. They could not really sympathise with those in pain unless they had suffered pain themselves. Let them look once again at the Cross and see the Son of God hanging there for three hours, deserted by His friends. There was no pain which any human being could ever suffer but Jesus knew, and could sympathise with. He could put Himself in their place; He had been through it all. Pain was good for them; good for disciplining, strengthening, refining and enriching their nature. It gave them the power, which they could not have otherwise, of helping and sympathising with other people.

There was some pain and suffering which it was hard to understand. There was the awful suffering of people living in the slums; children half starved and ill-clad; men out of employment, and with no hope of work. What possible good could suffering like that do to anybody? Take the example of Mozart, the great musician and composer. The whole town where he lived was ringing with his praise, but it was too late. Mozart was dying; dying in abject poverty, and his wife could not afford to raise money to pay for his coffin, so it was provided by charity, and he occupied the grave of a pauper. The only light was that which shone from the Cross, showing that Cross to the disciples who beheld, and the Mother who wept beneath its shadow. Was it not the most awful and incomprehensible of tragedies? Was there ever a failure like that failure; ever a sorrow like that sorrow? And yet that failure was a supreme victory, and that sorrow a perfect joy. So they should not lose their faith even if there was a great deal of pain and sorrow in the world which they could not explain. Let them lift up their eyes to the Cross and see the Son of God dying there for His love for man. They could not get behind that. Would they not trust Him? He seemed to say: "I cannot explain all the suffering in the world, but I ask no one to bear anything which I have not borne Myself."

THE COMING TIME.

There was a time coming when there would be no more pain. There was terrible suffering in the world to-day; suffering which they could hardly bear to think of; suffering for which there seemed to be no reason, no explanation, but it would not always be so. Here in this world trouble, sorrow, pain and disappointments were their portion, but there was a better world beyond: a world in which God would wipe away all tears from all eyes. Their life here was short—a few years and it was done. The life beyond was one of perfect peace. Happiness with Christ was eternal; life an endless life.

"Brief life is here our portion;
Brief sorrow, short-lived care;
The life that knows no ending,
The tearless life, is there."

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL.

The preacher to-morrow at Morning Service (11 o'clock) in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, will be the Archbishop of Dublin. The anthem will be, "I know that my Redeemer liveth" (Handel), which will be repeated at the Festival Evensong at 3.30 o'clock. There will be special offerings for the expenses of the Cathedral Mission House, Fishamble street, Dublin.

DINNER HOUR SERVICE.

The Bishop of Ossory, speaking at the first of a series of Dinner Hour Services, held in St. Ann's Church, Dawson street, on Thursday, at 1.5 o'clock p.m., took as his theme "Suffering and Sympathy."

THE PRO-CATHEDRAL.

HOLY WEEK SERVICES.

On Holy Thursday the ceremonies at the Pro-Cathedral, Dublin, commenced at 9 o'clock. His Grace the Archbishop pontificated and consecrated the Holy Oils. A large number of priests, deacons, and sub-deacons from the religious Orders of the city were present, as well as the students of Holy Cross College, Clonliffe.

The deacon of the Mass was the Rev. J. Cosgrave; sub-deacon, the Rev. J. Kenny. The assistant deacons were the Rev. P. Dunlea and the Rev. P. O'Flynn. The assistant priest was the Very Rev. Canon McMahon, and the master of ceremonies the Rev. M. Murphy.

Sermons on the Blessed Sacrament were preached by the Rev. J. McArdle after Mass, and after Tenebrae in the evening by the Rev. M. Murphy.

Yesterday the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified began at 11 o'clock. His Grace the Archbishop presided, and was assisted at the throne by the Very Rev. J. Flood, Adm., and the Rev. T. O'Donnell, Archbishop's House. The celebrant was the Rev. T. Farrell, C.C.; deacon, the Rev. J. Hawkes; sub-deacon, the Rev. J. O'Connell; and master of ceremonies, the Rev. M. Murphy, C.C. The Passion was chanted by the Rev. J. McArdle, the Rev. P. Dunlea, and the Rev. J. Cosgrave, assisted by the Pro-Cathedral choir, under the direction of Mr. V. O'Brien. At 3 o'clock the Rev. T. Farrell preached on the Passion. Again at 7.30 His Grace presided at the Office of Tenebrae, which was followed by a sermon on the Passion by the Rev. P. Dunlea.

On Easter Sunday there will be High Mass at 12 o'clock, when the Archbishop will preside.

FATAL MOTOR ACCIDENT.

CYCLIST'S DEATH IN COUNTY DUBLIN.

CHARGE AGAINST CAPTAIN REDMOND, T.D.

Following injuries which he received on Wednesday evening in a collision with a motor car driven by Captain William Redmond, T.D., near the village of Cabinteely, a young man named Thomas Murphy, a painter, of Priory road, Kimmage, County Dublin, died at St. Columcille's Hospital, Loughlinstown, on Thursday morning.

It is stated that Captain Redmond was driving towards Dublin, and when approaching Cabinteely, collided with Murphy, who was riding a bicycle in the direction of Bray.

The cyclist fell on the road, and received injuries to the head and body. He was taken at once to the hospital.

DISTRICT COURT PROCEEDINGS.

In the Lucan District Court on Thursday morning, Captain W. Redmond, of 28 Upper Pembroke street, Dublin, was charged before District Justice Reddin with having, at Cabinteely on Wednesday evening, caused the death of Thomas Murphy, aged 22, by running him down with his motor car.

Superintendent O'Reilly, Civic Guard, said that he arrested Captain Redmond at his residence on Thursday morning, and he made no statement.

Captain Redmond was remanded to the Shankill District Court on May 2nd on his own bail of £500.

THE INQUEST.

The inquest on the body of Murphy was opened by Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for South County Dublin, at St. Columcille's Hospital, Loughlinstown, on Thursday evening.

Evidence of identification was given by Mrs. Mary Maguire, Priory road, Kimmage, who stated that the deceased man was her foster-son, and lived in her house.

Dr. Pim, surgeon, said that Murphy was admitted to the hospital at about 8.40 o'clock on Wednesday night. There were severe injuries to the head, to the eye, and the left side of the face. There was also evidence of injury to the skull and brain.

He would like, he said, to make a further examination before giving his opinion as to the cause of death.

Replying to Superintendent O'Reilly, he said that the injuries might have been caused by a collision with a motor car.

The inquest was adjourned pending the result of the prosecution against Captain Redmond.

Mr. J. H. McLoughlin, barrister-at-law (instructed by Messrs. J. H. McLoughlin and Sons), who represented Captain Redmond, expressed sympathy with the relatives of the deceased man.

Captain Redmond was present during the proceedings.

DUBLIN BUOY ASHORE AT GREYSTONES.

EFFORTS TO REFLOAT IT FAIL

From the Greystones beach yesterday morning there was noticed a buoy floating at a place that hitherto had been unmarked. With the aid of telescopes it was found that the buoy was drifting, and the marks which it bore indicated that it belonged to Dublin Bay, and had occupied a position at the mouth of the river Liffey. The Irish Lights authorities were warned that the buoy had broken from its moorings; and that it was probable that it would be blown round Dromin point, and be driven into the bay of Wicklow. Later, however, it was blown ashore at the south beach in Greystones, just clear of the rocks. Two local residents managed to attach a cable to it, and thus it was secured safely. The Irish Lights Commissioners' tender, the Alexandra, which had been notified, arrived, a line was connected to the buoy, and efforts made to tow it to sea without avail. It was then decided to make it secure with steel hawsers tied to the ten-ton defence blocks which form the sea wall, and resume work at floating it at high tide.

The buoy measures eighteen feet, and weighs six or eight tons, and is loaded with carbide, which generates light, flashing at short intervals. The flashing of the powerful light last night attracted considerable attention.

SUPREME PERFORMANCE
.... that rules every road

Among the earliest builders of straight 8 engines...with ten years of practical successful experience assuring their perfection...Hupmobile now presents its greatest creation, the Hupmobile 133 horse-power Eight.

New Hupmobile engineering achievements assure an absolute, unquestioned rulership of the road. Double down draft carburetion,... oil cooled by circulation through the radiator ...Such exclusive features as these provide motor efficiency that removes every limit that engine endurance formerly imposed on power and speed.

These basic mechanical improvements, available only in this new Hupmobile, give an easy rugged power that levels the steepest hill, a steady, effortless speed of 90 miles an hour, and a soaring, leaping acceleration that glides from 5 to 50 miles per hour in 14 seconds.

In this new Hupmobile automobile performance reaches new and unexpected heights. Drive it.

SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1930.

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

Mr. E. A. Collins, K.C., one of the Dublin District Justices, died suddenly on Thursday morning while on his way from his residence in Upper Mount street to the District Court.—(Page 8.)

Captain W. Redmond, T.D., was remanded on his own bail at the Lucan District Court on Thursday on a charge of having caused the death of a cyclist in a collision with his motor car at Cabinteely on Wednesday evening last.—(Page 5.)

A dispute has arisen between the Irish Omnibus Company and its employés concerning a new scale of wages for drivers, which the company proposes to put into operation from to-day.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

Eight fire brigade men were injured yesterday when a wall collapsed during a fire in a bolt and nut factory at Govan.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD.

While Senator Borah has decided not to oppose the Three-Power Naval Pact, and will co-operate with President Hoover in expediting its course through the United States Senate, serious opposition to the Pact is feared from the "Big Navy" Party.—(Page 7.)

A meeting of the Viceroy of India's Executive Council was held yesterday, at which the situation in the country was reviewed. Gandhi says that the blame for the recent rioting rests with the Government. Sentences of two years', one year's and six months' rigorous imprisonment have been passed on native leaders for breaches of the Salt Laws.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING.

At Cheltenham on Thursday Phibisher won the Cirencester Handicap Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were quite satisfactory in tendency on Thursday. Motors and Breweries were firm spots.—(Page 12)

The Treasury Bill rate was unchanged at $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Credit was offering in Lombard street over the holidays down to $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The discount market was firm. Sterling on New York was easier. The Bank received £1,000,000 in sovereigns from Australia.—(Page 12.)

Dublin on Thursday put through considerable business for the new account. Guinness rose sharply, and Unilevers improved.—(Page 12.)

Easter.

"Spring comes slowly up this way." The past winter, though it was not unduly severe, was loth to go; and hitherto April, while she charms us with green leaf and budding flower, still has failed to shake off the uncongenial companionship of north-easterly winds. Nevertheless, she carries in her bosom the promise of May, and the world upon which Easter will dawn to-morrow will be happy for the young, and young even for the old. With Easter we turn our faces from the shadow to the sun, entering, like Proserpina, on the brighter half of the annual round. The Easter holiday-maker, even if he has secured only a scant couple of days from labour, makes his adventure with a lightness of heart which is peculiar to this season and is not recaptured in the ampler leisure of his summer holiday. In the first place, he is renewing, after long estrangement, his sight of blue seas and green hillsides. In the next place, his present joys are multiplied by anticipation. He knows that during four or five months all summer's delights will be spread before him. The road-map on his table, the smell of fresh paint in Kingstown Harbour, the newly enclosed cricket pitch in the College Park, the walking-stick, faithful ally of former tramps—such things beckon now with a new and irresistible appeal. To-day, when every Wednesday brings its half-holiday and every evening its hour of prolonged daylight, this anticipation may be shared by the humblest wage-earner; for God's sunshine and the beauties of woodside and heather are free to all. It is certain that during the next three days a larger number of our townspeople will enjoy the reality and the promise of Easter than in any former year. This is the season when the motor car—the bane of urban life for so many pedestrians—justifies its existence, and in the motor omnibus's holiday service to a joyful democracy we forget its working-day menace to life and limb. We have two wishes for the thousands of citizens who, in this Eastertide, will throw themselves by every road upon the joys of the country and the sea. One is that they may be able, in this brief interlude, to snatch a complete oblivion from the c··es of business—to forget Dublin's increased rates, to forget Mr. Blythe's impending Budget, to enjoy Nature's welcome to the full, and, perhaps, if they are lucky—

To hear the pleasant cuckoo, loud and long,
The simple bird that thinks two notes a song.

Our other wish is that the crowded roads may be kept free from accident by a resolve, steadily present in the minds of all drivers of private and public cars, that no household's holiday shall be darkened through any lack of their caution. To-morrow it will be the Churches' duty to proclaim the greatest factor in the happiness of Eastertide. It is the factor that makes Easter happy for many whose worldly pleasures are few, and for some who know that to-morrow's will be the last Easter sun that their tired eyes will see. Consciously, or unconsciously, it is the supreme factor for us all—our sole refuge from the appalling creed, "Let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die."

Germany and the Baltic.

While the naval Powers still are floundering in futile efforts to square the circle of disarmament at sea, an interesting and significant situation has arisen in Germany concerning the new "pocket battleships." The Treaty of Versailles reduced the German Navy to the merest skeleton, restricting its personnel to 15,000 officers and men, and imposing a limit of 10,000 tons on the size of its battleships. With remarkable ingenuity, however, German ship-designers have been able to evade the latter clause in the Treaty, while keeping to the strict letter of the law, by the construction of the famous "pocket battleship." This craft, although not more than 10,000 tons, has the qualities of a ship very much larger. It has presented the naval Powers with a fresh problem, and, doubtless, many an international conference will be held before a solution is found. Only one of these ships, known as Armoured Cruiser "A," has been built. Before the Müller Government went out of power it cancelled plans that had been made for the construction of a sister ship, and struck an item of £145,000 out of the naval estimates. During the present week, however, the German Budget was reviewed by the Reichsrat, the Federal Council of Germany's constituent States, and, on the motion of an East Prussian delegate, this item was restored. The last word rests, naturally, with the Reichstag; but the Reichsrat's decision may be regarded as an instruction to the Brüning Government to proceed with the building of Armoured Cruiser "B."

We may be quite certain that Germany has no desire, even if she had the means, to become once more a serious rival to the British Empire as a naval Power. The United States has demanded, and attained, parity, and any possible naval challenge by Germany would involve the American, as well as the British, Navy. Germany's brief career as a world Power at sea is at an end, but the Baltic remains. Here Germany is faced with two problems. Soviet Russia is an unknown quantity. Its plans in respect of naval development never have been disclosed, and Germany, very naturally, distrusts the Bolsheviks. The second problem is more actual. It can be expressed in the single word, Poland. Nobody who has not visited the eastern marches of Germany can appreciate the intensity of feeling in that part of the world. The resurrection of Poland was an act of common justice; no fair-minded man can deny that fact. Nevertheless, the colonisation of Germany's Polish provinces was so thorough that their restoration to Poland caused almost as much resentment in Germany as the annexation by her of Alsace-Lorraine caused in France in 1871. The provinces of Posen, Upper Silesia and West Prussia were as German as the nine counties of Ulster are British, and the analogy with Ireland is remarkably close in other respects.

German and Pole are mixed so inextricably in that part of Europe that even a Solomon could not have devised a settlement acceptable to both, but the existing arrangement is so unstable that it is a constant source of international danger. Germany has refused consistently to acquiesce in the delimitation of her eastern frontiers. The late Dr. Stresemann declared frankly at Locarno that he could not guarantee the preservation of such a patch-work; and, now that the evacuation of the Rhineland has been undertaken by the Allies, the German Government, very probably, will raise the whole question at the first opportunity. We do not suggest that Berlin is building "pocket battleships" to terrorise the Poles, but those who study world politics must look ahead. Germany has guaranteed the frontiers of Alsace-Lorraine, but in the East she ha guaranteed nothing. On the contrary, her spokesmen have made no secret of her intention to use every legitimate means to re-adjust the Polish frontiers. By the time when Germany is ready for what the Americans term a "show-down" with Poland, all battleships may have disappeared from the sea and international problems may be settled amicably at Geneva. On the other hand, the millennium may be postponed again, in which event the "pocket battleship" may prove to be a not inconsiderable factor in world affairs. One thing is sure. Germany's eastern frontiers are not permanent. How and when they will be changed no man can foretell.

Lundy Island.

On Tuesday the Bideford magistrates were called upon to decide whether or not the King's writ ran in Lundy Island. The case arose out of a charge against Mr. Martin Coles Harman, the owner of the island, that by the issue of token coins he had infringed the Coinage Act of 1870. Mr. Harman, as "King of Lundy," refused to plead, since he claimed that the island "for all purposes" was outside the Realm. Evidence was given, however, on behalf of the Director of Public Prosecutions that the King's writ was issued for the recovery of Lundy in 1587, when the Lord of the Manor of Barnstaple issued warrants for the arrest of "divers rievers." The Bideford Bench, therefore, took the view that the King's writ in Lundy, like Charley's aunt, was still running and unsympathetically fined Mr. Harman five pounds. In every country, ancient and modern, the Crown always has been very touchy on the subject of coinage. Indeed, the right to coin money is an accepted proof of kingship, and numismatists often have been able to help historians, struggling with uncertain periods and obscure monarchs, to sort out whole dynasties into their proper order. Perhaps, a thou..nd years hence, some archæologist will discover one of Lundy's token coins, nobly embellished with a puffin on one side and the effigy of Mr. Harman on the other. Then, no doubt, this discovery will stimulate fertile imaginations to exciting theories about the Kings of Lundy, who contrived to maintain their independence until 1930. The idea is so attractive that, on the whole, we may regret that the Bideford magistrates rejected Mr. Harman's claim. Moreover, we feel that the Devon County Council, despite its many good qualities, is too prosaic a body to administer this romantic island, which has been the home of pirates and Barbary corsairs.

Stage Incomes.

Councillor Thornton, of Leeds, is distressed because so few characters in modern plays are people with incomes of less than £500 a year. Speaking at Oxford to a conference of the Working Men's Club and Institute, he waxed eloquent on this theme. "When a poor man comes on the stage," he said, "the general idea is to make fun of him." We must confess that we have not noticed this alleged tendency among playwrights; but, perhaps, the Councillor has been unfortunate in the theatres which he has attended. He criticised war plays, because they were written always from the officers' point of view, while many of the men were "quite as intelligent as the officers' mess." This statement is true, but the answer is simple and the remedy is obvious. Most of the war plays have been written by ex-officers, who naturally write from the angle which they know best. Let the Councillor, then, inspire some intelligent man who was in the ranks to write a war play, and all will be well. We suggest that, to soothe his ruffled feelings about the affluence of characters in modern comedies and dramas, he takes a course of Sean O'Casey; but, perhaps, he might disapprove of "Juno and the Paycock" on the ground that the author dealt irreverently with the views of Captain Boyle. Such a complaint from a man who holds a responsible position is astonishing, and suggests that vice of which, by implication, he is accusing others. Snobbery is two-edged, and Councillor Thornton's querulous outburst indicates that he may be suffering from the inverted form of that disease. If he should write a play himself, we shall hasten to see it in high hopes of entertainment.

LONDON LETTER.

THE EASTER HOLIDAYS.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

A change in the weather yesterday afternoon, when the sun appeared, tempered the keen edge of the icy winds from the north-east which had greeted the holiday-makers who were leaving London by road for the sea. Every main road had streams of cars laden with smiling people and numerous suit cases. Every now and again the line of cars was broken by a motor coach, also packed with holiday-makers, many of whom were travelling for such distant places as Bournemouth, Torquay, Weymouth and Falmouth. At the railway stations there were many interesting scenes, and at Paddington ten miles of railway coaches were used to carry the holiday-makers out of town. A train left for the West of England every twenty-five minutes. At Euston the traffic was extremely heavy, and no fewer than one thousand sleeping berths were booked on the night expresses. The weather changed again during the night, and this morning it not only was bitterly cold, but very wet. The result was that the usual Good Friday morning traffic scenes were absent.

Anglo-Egyptian Negotiations.

Mr. Arthur Henderson was unable to make a statement regarding the progress of the Anglo-Egyptian negotiations before Parliament rose yesterday, and it is quite possible that the Conference will end in failure; for, while the Egyptians had hoped that the Government would accept their proposals, the Government has intimated in a very definite form that the proposals were not acceptable. The Egyptian delegation is placed in a most awkward position by this rebuff, and has to consider its line of action. Consequently there will be no business for the Conference during the next few days, except the exchange of informal conversations.

Three-Power Naval Treaty.

The drafting of the Three-Power Naval Treaty has been completed by the committee of jurists and experts who have been in session at St. Jamse's Palace throughout the week, and arrangements have been made for the transmission by cable of those parts that require confirmation by the Governments directly interested. The most important part of the Treaty, as far as this country is concerned, is the safeguarding clause, which permits increases in our Navy if France and Italy take to building war vessels in a hurry. The plenary session still remains fixed for Tuesday next, but the expectation is that it will be postponed until the closing days of next week.

Parliament's Heavy Programme.

Parliament's short Easter holiday this year is due to the necessity of hastening the legislation that the Government desires to pass by the end of July. The measure dealing with the abolition of slums will take a long time, and has ousted the idea that any revision of the Trades Disputes Act will be possible. It is apparent now that there will be some acrimonious and difficult discussions on the Finance Bill, and that these will occupy much of the available time before Whitsun. The bill to bring in taxation of land values also will take time, and altogether the rising of Parliament by the last week in July seems to be doubtful.

Labour's Election Plans.

Mr. Snowden's hint that he expects to present the Budget in the House of Commons next year carries out an idea held in political circles ever since Labour took office. It was suggested then that the Budget period of 1931 would be the moment when the Labour Party, following upon the production of a real socialistic programme, would seek an appeal to the country. Time alone can prove whether or not this view is correct, but one thing must be borne in mind. The Labour Party secured office on its unemployment promises. These have proved to be but very thin piecrust up to the present, and, since it will be on performance that the Labour Party will be judged, it remains to be seen what progress Mr. Thomas will have made by the spring of next year. If he has not been successful in any degree, it may be found that Labour, with the help of the Liberals, will carry on until the time is considered ripe for an appeal to the electorate. At the moment it appears that, by next spring, we shall have something like two millions of unemployed, an advance quite beyond the calculations of Mr. Thomas and the Government.

The Conservative Party.

A welcome development of organisation in the Conservative Party is an arrangement whereby the overlapping of the activities of the Central Office and the Unionist canvassing corps will be eliminated. Lady Iveagh, M.P., is mainly responsible for the conference, at which the arrangements were concluded, and a more effective and economical distribution of effort between the corps and the Central Office ought to do much to further the Conservative cause. This agreement is part of a larger scheme for the co-ordination of the activities of all the various bodies connected with the Conservative Party in order that definite work may be assigned to every organisation.

Free State Coinage.

Among the importations of bullion and specie recorded in to-night's London Gazette is an item of £28,147 from the Irish Free State, consisting of silver coin of legal tender in the United Kingdom. With the increased circulation of Free State coinage further importations of the British coinage previously in use will take place.

New Government Buildings.

The First Commissioner of Works announced in the House of Commons on Wednesday that new Government offices would be erected on the site of Whitehall Gardens and Montague House, but he did not mention the particular Government departments for which the new accommodation is being erected. It is believed that the chief department concerned is the Air Ministry, which has long desired to have a headquarter building among the other Government departments in the Whitehall area. At present the activities of the Ministry are conducted from several different buildings in Kingsway, which, although a noble thoroughfare, is too remote from Whitehall; and it is hoped that more economical and efficient administration will be possible when the Air Ministry is housed in one building, conveniently situated near the Admiralty and the War Office.

A State Medical Service.

The possibilities of a State medical service are being considered by at least one important branch of the British Medical Association. This body has sent to its members a questionnaire asking whether the member would be prepared to spend part of his time in a hospital or looking after patients other than his own, and in what particular branch of his profession he has special knowledge, and if he would be ready to take a special course or courses to refresh or improve his knowledge. At present there is much criticism both from doctors and patients of the existing medical service under the national health insurance scheme, and, whatever view medical men take of the idea of a State medical service, there seems to be an agreement that both doctors and patients might be placed in a much better position.

After a short stay in Paris the King of the Belgians returned on Thursday to Brussels, where the Queen will rejoin him to-day. On Monday next Their Majesties and their two sons, the Duke of Brabant and Prince Charles, will be invested with the insignia of the Sovereign Order of Malta.

LOWERING CLOUDS IN INDIA.

SITUATION REVIEWED BY VICEROY'S COUNCIL.

GOVERNMENT BLAMED BY GANDHI FOR RIOTS.

SHARP SENTENCES ON NATIVE LEADERS.

A MEETING of the Viceroy of India's Executive Council was held yesterday at Simla, when the situation in the country was reviewed.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Lansbury, replying to questions addressed to the Secretary for India, who had been suddenly called away to attend a State conference, said that the situation in India was extremely difficult and needed very sympathetic treatment, but he was confident that the Viceroy and the Secretary for India would do their utmost to secure a settlement.

Gandhi, in a speech yesterday, expressed surprise that he was still at liberty, while many of those whom he had instigated to break the Salt Laws had been cast into jail. Among the latest batch of prisoners sentenced is his son, Devi Das, who will have to undergo three months' simple imprisonment. Other leaders have been sentenced to two years', one year's and six months' "rigorous" imprisonment.

Speaking at Navsari, in the Bombay Presidency, Gandhi referred to the recent rioting, and declared that the Government had provoked it. In a leading article in his paper, "Young India," he accused the Government of having deliberately picked upon the non-violent leaders who were known to possess a controlling influence over the people.

EXECUTIVE MEETS AT SIMLA.

VICEROY'S SUCCESSFUL NORTH-WEST TOUR.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
SIMLA, Friday.

There was a meeting of the Viceroy's Executive Council to-day, when the situation in the country was reviewed.

Reuter's Correspondent is informed that the Viceroy's visit to the North-West Frontier has been a success from start to finish. His Excellency had an opportunity of renewing many friendships and acquaintances, and gaining a first hand appreciation of the progress made in independent territory since he visited it in 1926, and of the steady work of pacification and development that is still going on.

Their Excellencies visited, by air and road, places where no Viceroy had been before. At Saidu, the capital of Swat, the Wali entertained Their Excellencies to lunch, and the Viceroy took the opportunity of bestowing on the Wali the insignia of Knighthood of the British Empire.

SITUATION VERY DIFFICULT.

REFERENCE IN HOUSE OF COMMONS.

On the motion for the adjournment of the House of Commons on Thursday,

Mr. Fenner Brockway urged that, on the publication of the report of the Simon Commission, the Government should definitely declare its intention to carry out a policy of self-government and Dominion status.

Commander Kenworthy held that all that could be done at present was to support the Government in Delhi in taking whatever steps it thought necessary to preserve the peace. They must refuse to be stampeded into panic action.

Mr. Maxton (Labour, Bridgeton) called for the greatest restraint in dealing with Indian agitators.

Mr. Lansbury, First Commissioner of Works, said that the Secretary for India had been suddenly called away to a State Conference. In Mr. Wedgwood-Benn's absence he could only give an assurance that the suggestions made would be carefully considered. The situation in India was extremely difficult, and one which needed very sympathetic treatment, but he was confident the Viceroy and the Secretary for India would do their utmost to secure a settlement. He thought that it would serve no useful purpose to say more, except to express a hope that the people in England and in India would get back to a position in which they had confidence in each other.

THE CALM BEFORE THE STORM.

SPARTAN REGIME FOR VOLUNTEERS.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BOMBAY, Friday.

"It looks like the calm before the storm," said a close associate of Mr. Gandhi to-day, his misgivings having been caused by the fact that there has been no news so far to-day of any arrests anywhere. Indeed, to-day has been the quietest day for Bombay City and province since Mr. Gandhi launched his civil disobedience campaign against the Salt Laws on the seashore at Dandi on the 6th inst. Every day since has seen a growing tale of disturbance and unrest until this Good Friday, and the strange quiet has not proved reassuring.

DOUBTERS SENT HOME.

Mr. Gandhi addressed a gathering of volunteers at Navzari yesterday evening, and laid down a most rigorous code of self-discipline. There were about five hundred persons present, and when the Mahatma asked any who did not agree with him to withdraw, fifty held up their hands, saying that they had expected to break the Salt Laws; not to go on fighting till independence was won.

They were told to go back to their villages and carry on the work of propaganda.

To those remaining the Mahatma said: "I want you to treat all other women as your mothers, sisters and daughters." Evidently he had heard of white women having been stoned in Calcutta.

LIVING ON FOURPENCE A DAY.

He insisted that the daily expenses of the volunteers should not exceed a sum of fourpence per head. Volunteers were not to ask for money from the general public. Those who could not give up smoking were to be allowed to continue the practice, but at their own expense, and with the previous consent of their captain.

They must, he continued, be prepared to offer the sacrifice of men of pure character. If independence were built on their ashes, it would be a glorious structure. He would dance for joy if they received bullet-wounds on their bare chests, but if they were guilty of violence, tears of blood would come to his eyes. They must be prepared for a repetition of Jallian wallabagh.

[This refers to the incident at Amritsar on April 13th, 1919, when General Dyer ordered his troops to fire on a mob whose demeanour was threatening, with the result that 379 were killed and 1,200 wounded.]

This morning Mr. Gandhi addressed another meeting at Kakwada Balsar Taluka, and revealed that he was not a little put out by the fact that he has not yet been arrested. He said that he was surprised that, while he was still at liberty, many of those whom he had instigated to break the Salt Laws had been cast into jail. This, he said, was characteristic of the "justice of this misruled State."

"MASS NON-VIOLENCE" STILL POSSIBLE.

"EASILY INFLAMMABLE" PEOPLE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BOMBAY, Thursday.

In an editorial in his periodical, Young India, under the heading "A Survey," Mr. Gandhi says: "The mass manifestation in Gujarat has exceeded all expectations. Bombay and its suburbs have done no less. The reports slowly coming to me from all over India are fully encouraging. That mass non-violence is a perfect possibility has been sufficiently demonstrated during the past eight days.

"If, then, we are to stand the final heat of battle, we must learn to stand our ground in face of cavalry and baton charges. We must allow ourselves to be trampled under horses' hoofs and bruised with baton charges.

"My indictment is not against the English as men; it is against Englishmen as a ruling caste," he continues. As men they are as good as we. In some respects they are better, in some others they are worse; but as rulers they are highly undesirable. They can do, and have done, no good to us. They have pandered to and accentuated our vices. As we have developed the inferiority complex their contact demoralises us."

YOUNG INDIA DISAPPOINTS.

Mr. Gandhi expresses some disappointment with the results of his campaign among the young people of India.

Referring to Jawaharlal Nehru's imprisonment, Mr. Gandhi says: "Even a day's imprisonment of the nation's first servant is an affront offered to the whole nation. Through this imprisonment the Government has told us to do our worst. The worst we can do is to invite more suffering upon ourselves. This can only be done by our intensifying the campaign."

"To prohibit public meetings and processions altogether is a thing calculated to precipitate violence. The Government, with the utmost deliberation, has picked on the leaders of the people who are known to be partial to non-violence, and possess a controlling influence over the people. It would have, therefore, been miraculous if such acts had not evoked reprisals from easily inflammable people, who are to be found in every community in all parts of the world."

ALL-INDIA CONGRESS PRESIDENCY.

POSITION DECLINED BY GANDHI.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
ALLAHABAD, Thursday.

Mr. Gandhi has decided not to accept the Presidency of the All-India Congress Committee, which was offered to him by the Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, who held the office when arrested last Monday for breaking the Salt Law.

In a telegram to the Pandit Motilal Nehru, father of Jawaharlal, Gandhi stated to-day that his acceptance of the Presidency was unnecessary and might even be harmful to the independence movement. He asked Motilal Nehru to shoulder the burden.

This Motilal has done and has notified all Congress organisations accordingly. It was arranged before the civil resistance campaign started that the President should nominate a successor if arrested.

SENTENCES.

Sampurnand, the leader of the civil disobedience campaign at Benares, was sentenced to-day to eighteen months' rigorous imprisonment and fined two hundred rupees, or in default a further six months' imprisonment.

Baijnath Singh, captain of the first local band of volunteers; Vishnunath Singh, Municipal Commissioner, and Saryanand, a member of the Youth League, were sentenced to sixteen months' rigorous imprisonment each for breaking the Salt Law. All the prisoners will be treated as "A" class prisoners.

CONGRESS LEADERS GO TO JAIL.

MRS. GANDHI LEADS ANTI-DRINK PARADE.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
SURAT, Thursday.

"In consideration of the fact that the salt disobedience movement is going on with the greatest vigour in this city, and that, with all the arrests made so far, people have been addressing meetings held to break the Salt Law, deterrent punish-

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN TREATY.

NEGOTIATIONS NOT YET COMPLETE.

FOREIGN SECRETARY'S STATEMENT.

An adjournment of the meetings with the Egyptian delegation was announced by Mr. Henderson, in the House of Commons on Thursday last.

Answering Mr. Godfrey Locker-Lampson (Conservative, Wood Green), the Foreign Secretary said: "Discussions have been proceeding for the past three weeks with the Egyptian delegation. The Government had hoped that complete agreement might have been reached before the House rose. Certain points, however, still present difficulties, and it has been agreed that the discussion shall be adjourned over the parliamentary recess."

AT THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

The British and Egyptian delegates to the Anglo-Egyptian Conference met again on Thursday morning to resume the treaty negotiations, and they were continued throughout the day. The hour of the meeting was advanced, because Mr. Henderson, Foreign Secretary, was to make a statement in the House of Commons later in the morning in regard to the progress of the negotiations.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Tom Shaw, Minister for War, arrived at the Foreign Office at 9.30, almost before Whitehall was astir, and a few minutes afterwards Lord Passfield, Secretary for Dominions and Colonies, entered the building. The Egyptian delegates and their secretaries drove up at 10 o'clock, and hurried into the conference.

Nahas Pasha and the other Egyptian delegates remained at the Foreign Office only half an hour, and Mr. Henderson left just after 11 o'clock for the House of Commons.

A statement issued later by the Foreign Office said: "The Egyptian delegation requested the adjournment of the conference in order to be able to consult their Government on certain points which have arisen in the discussions."

THE PRINCE IN CAIRO.

OFFICIAL VISITS AND GOLF.

FROM THE PRESS ASSOCIATION'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
CAIRO, Friday.

The Prince of Wales spent the morning quietly at the Residency until a quarter to one, when he called on King Fuad at Abdin Palace and remained for lunch. Afterwards he returned to the Residency, where, at a quarter to three, the King of Egypt paid him an official visit. A khamsin is blowing from the south laden with the hot air and dust of the desert, and the atmosphere of Cairo is distinctly sultry and oppressive.

His Royal Highness, having had a short rest following upon the King's visit, again motored out to the Gezira Sporting Club for exercise. Finding it too stuffy for squash racquets, he played golf on the club links, afterwards having drinks at the club-house with Lady Loraine and a party of friends, and going back to dinner at the Residency.

ment is essential to set an example to others to refrain from such acts."

This statement was made by the City Magistrate in sentencing two men here to-day. They were K. V. Mehta and C. B. Marfatia, the President and Treasurer respectively of the Surat Congress Committee, and they were sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment each for making speeches exhorting people to break the Salt Laws.

During the trial Mrs. Gandhi garlanded the accused men.

A procession of women, led by Mrs. Gandi, marched through the liquor shop areas singing anti-drink songs.

TWO YEARS' IMPRISONMENT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
KARACHI, Thursday.

The trial of six local leaders of the Civil Resistance movement, who were charged under Sections 117 and 34 of the Indian Penal Code and also under Section 47 of the Salt Act, concluded this afternoon.

Dr. Choithram, President of the Sind Provincial Congress Committee, and Naraindas Anandjee Bechar, President of the Karachi Congress Committee, were sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment each; Swami Krishnanand and Vishnoo Sharma, editor of the Hindu paper, Jati, to eighteen months' rigorous imprisonment; Manilal J. Vyas to twelve months' rigorous imprisonment, and Dr. Tarachand J. Lalvani to six months' rigorous imprisonment.

GANDHI'S VIEW OF THE RIOTING.

"THE GOVERNMENT HAVE PROVOKED IT."

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NAVSARI, Thursday.

In his first statement regarding the riots at Calcutta and Karachi, Mr. Gandhi says:—"It is too early for me to speak with certainty about the so-called riots in Calcutta and Karachi. Having become used to the grossly exaggerated accounts and distorted versions of things happening before my eyes, I am inclined largely to discount the stories of the violence alleged to have been done by the people. Be it ever so little, I have no manner of doubt it will harm our struggle.

"At the same time the struggle has to go on unchecked. If non-violence has to fight the people's violence in addition to the violence of the Government, it must still perform its arduous task at any cost. I see no escape from it.

"At the very outset of the campaign I declared that there was every possibility of some violence breaking out on the part of the people. It seems it has now broken out, and it hurts me, if only because it hurts the cause I hold as dear as life itself, but I must say the Government have provoked it.

"The obvious fact is that the Government do not want peace. Take Gujarat itself, for instance. In out-of-the-way Dholera and near Virahgam unnameable indecent atrocities are said to have been committed upon defenceless national workers. Their only crime was that they will not easily yield up the salt in their possession."

Having referred to the fact that Jairam Das Doul Atram, the Congress leader, had been wounded during the shooting at Karachi, Gandhi said: "Such casualties will only result in the manifestation of a greater response from the people."

SENTENCE ON GANDHI'S SON.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
NEW DELHI, Thursday.

Devi Das Gandhi, the Mahatma's son, who was arrested for breach of the Salt Law at Saleempur on April 9, and Mr. Shanker Lal, president of the District Congress Committee, who was arrested at the same time, have each been sentenced to three months' simple imprisonment.

Ten other men arrested on the same occasion were sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment under the Salt Laws.

U.S. AND NAVAL PACT.

DIFFICULTIES FOR MR. HOOVER.

SENATOR BORAH'S SUPPORT.

"BIG NAVY" PARTY'S OPPOSITION.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Friday.

The question of the day is what course President Hoover will take with regard to the ratification of the Naval Disarmament Pact. As Congress will be in session until the middle of June, there is a pronounced possibility that the Pact will be submitted to it immediately on the arrival of the American delegation at Washington. This would be very much to the President's liking, as otherwise it would be necessary to postpone any action until January.

If, after consulting Senator Reed and Senator Robinson, of the American delegation, Mr. Hoover decides to do this, he will have the support of Senator Borah, the Chairman of the powerful Foreign Relations Committee. At the White House conferences yesterday it is understood that Senator Borah advised the President that he had decided not to oppose the Treaty, even though not entirely satisfied with it, but would co-operate with the President in expediting its course through the Senate. Without this assurance from Senator Borah it would have been out of the question for the President even to think of bringing up the matter in the present session.

THE "BIG NAVY" PARTY.

The chief difficulty in the way of getting immediate Senate action is the Tariff Bill, which has been dragging on interminably, and which all good Republicans would like to see out of the way.

Another caller on the President yesterday was Senator Hale, leader of the "Big Navy" element in the Senate and Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee. Senator Hale states that he believes the treaty embodies a departure from the American policy of building big cruisers, and that he intends to air the matter in his Committee, with special emphasis on the opinions of the naval experts.

Senator Tydings, a member of the Naval Affairs Committee, speaking on the wireless last night, said that "the treaty contains some achievements, but has some sides which are not favourable to the United States by a great deal."

In any possible conflict with the "Big Navy" Party President Hoover could confidently rely on the support of public opinion, and he is preparing to take the matter to the people. His plans are reported to include a nation-wide wireless address on the day that he submits the treaty to the Senate.

RESPONSIBILITY OF CONGRESS.

Later.

Mr. Hale, Chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, urged in the Senate to-day that no definite stand should be taken on the Naval Treaty until his Committee had held hearings on the technical points involved. "On Congress rests full responsibility to determine the size of our Navy," Senator Hale added.

The first seven 10,000-ton cruisers allotted to the United States are expected in Government circles to be laid down at any time suitable to the Navy, presumably before 1933. The remaining three are expected to be laid down in the years 1933, 1934 and 1935.

HOUSE OF COMMONS QUESTIONS.

THE SAFEGUARD CLAUSE IN THE TREATY.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a question by Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy (Lab., Hull Central), who wanted to know "whether, in discussing the so-called safeguard clause in the three-Power naval treaty to allow for additional warship building for the Royal Navy in the event of accelerated shipbuilding by the Continental nations, the strength of the French-Italian Navies in combination is to be considered," said: "The clause will not be aimed at any special fleet, or combination of fleets."

SINGAPORE BASE.

The Singapore naval base and naval construction were the subjects of questions addressed to the First Lord by Commander Kenworthy.

Mr. Alexander replied that the matter of the Singapore base, as he had already intimated, would require to be carefully reviewed in the light of the treaty which, it was hoped, would shortly be signed by all the Powers represented at the London Naval Conference. This review, he added, "will be undertaken with as little delay as possible, and, I need hardly repeat, in full consultation with the overseas Governments of the British Commonwealth concerned."

Questioned as to whether any of the vessels of the suspended naval programme were now to be laid down, Mr. Alexander referred to his explanatory statement on the Navy estimates. In further reply, he said:—"My statement was that we should not proceed with the 1930 construction programme until after the Conference. The position of the 1929 programme is already settled. There are three cruisers in the programme. Two were cancelled. We are proceeding with one.

FIRE AT HADDO HOUSE.

EARL HELPS TO RESCUE FURNITURE.

During a fire at Haddo House, Aberdeenshire, yesterday, the Earl of Haddo helped in the removal of furniture from the building. A considerable part of the house was damaged. Smoke was seen coming from the roof of the west wing. Servants and estate workers climbed to the roof, while others passed up pails of water. A fierce gale was blowing, and the flames spread rapidly. The Aberdeen fire brigade was summoned, but before its arrival part of the roof had fallen.

The whole of the modern west wing of the house was burned, but that part of the building which dates back to 1732 is undamaged.

Lady Haddo told a Press Association reporter that three valuable Wedgwood fireplaces had been destroyed. "Fortunately," she added, "a number of valuable letters and papers were found after the fire in the wood near the house. They had been blown there by the wind. A housemaid discovered the fire and reported it to me. Lord Haddo at once rang the fire alarm. He and I assisted in the removal of the furniture."

Lord Haddo said that he was unable to estimate the amount of damage done.

The Earl of Haddo is the elder son of the first Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair. He is a member of the London County Council, of which he was Deputy Chairman in 1923-24. He also represented the Council on the Metropolitan Water Board, and he takes an active part on many of the committees.

LADY GLANELY'S SUDDEN DEATH.

HER RECENT VISIT TO IRELAND.

Lady Glanely, wife of Lord Glanely, the well-known racehorse owner, died suddenly during Thursday night at Exning House, Exning, near Newmarket, aged fifty-four years.

Lord and Lady Glanely had been staying with the Earl and Countess of Dunraven at Adare Manor, County Limerick, for some days, and returned to London early this week. On Wednesday Lady Glanely went to Newmarket, her husband remaining in London.

Although Lady Glanely was not feeling in the best of health on Thursday night, there was nothing in her condition to give cause for alarm until about midnight. Indeed, Lord Glanely spoke to her on the telephone during the evening, and she then seemed quite cheerful. During the evening, however, she took a sudden turn for the worse, and an urgent call was put through to the Bath Club, where Lord Glanely was staying. He left by car and drove to Exning House, but arrived two hours after his wife had died.

A friend of Lady Glanely stated that she had never really got over the shock of a motor car accident in which she was involved just before Christmas, 1928, when her motor car took fire, and she was rescued with difficulty. The car was completely destroyed, and Lady Glanely's luggage and jewels, estimated to be worth between £30,000 and £40,000, were lost.

When they returned from Ireland this week, Lord Glanely stayed in London because he was going to attend a race meeting at Cardiff.

Lady Glanely before her marriage in 1897 was Miss Ada Mary Williams, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Williams, of Cardiff. She was made a Companion of the Order of the British Empire ten years ago.

Lord Glanely, in addition to his racing interests, is a director of the Great Western Railway Company and of a number of shipping and other companies in South Wales. He is also an ex-President of the Cardiff Shipowners' Association, and two years ago was given the freedom of Cardiff in recognition of his services and munificence to local and national institutions. It was then reported that he had given over £104,000 to charitable and educational institutions in Wales.

A NOTED HORSEWOMAN.

A large house party had been arranged at Exning House for Newmarket Races. Lady Glanely was a well-known hunting woman and distinguished herself with the hounds. She was successful with hacks in many big shows, and for three consecutive years carried off the championship at Olympia, where she showed hacks which were ridden by herself. She was very successful at Coed Kernew, where Lord Tredegar's hunter trials took place. She also drove a tandem, as well as pairs of horses. During the war she spent much time at Cardiff Hospital and ran a Belgian refugee home.

Lady Glanely had many interests in children's homes, and was a great friend to the Church of St. Martin, Exning, where she was instrumental in clearing off the debt. Last Sunday week Lord and Lady Glanely attended St. Mark's Church, London, when the organ given by Lord Glanely was dedicated.

On arriving in London from Ireland this week, Lady Glanely visited a specialist, who advised her to rest for a few days. On Thursday evening she was in jovial spirits and retired apparently in perfect health. At midnight she was taken ill, and a nurse who was in the house attended to her. A few hours later she died, before the arrival of a doctor. Lady Glanely had one son, who died in 1905 at the age of six.

The funeral will take place at Cardiff at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, and it is likely that there will be a Memorial Service at St. Martin's Church, Exning.

All Lord Glanely's horses have been scratched for the present.

PROMOTING FREE STATE TRADE.

SHOPPING WEEK IN GLASGOW.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Friday.

The taking over of the large shop premises in Argyle street, Glasgow, by Mr. Dulanty, the Commissioner for Trade, for the purpose of making a display of Free State produce will receive additional attention from the fact that the opening ceremony will be performed by Mr. P. McGilligan, Minister for Industry and Commerce and External Affairs. The display of produce will last from 29th April until 10th May.

In conjunction with this, the Commissioner for Trade has arranged an Irish Free State shopping week in Glasgow, and upwards of forty shops will enter into competition for a silver cup presented by the Free State Government for the best window display. A further large number of firms who do not propose to enter the competition will, however, give a special display of Free State produce during the week.

The publicity occasioned by all these events cannot fail to enhance the popularity of Irish produce in Glasgow.

Samples of eggs, butter, condensed milk and honey will be on sale at the "shop" during the fortnight, and it is expected that many people will be drawn to the shop to see the demonstration of egg-testing, grading and stamping, which will be an important feature of the display.

At the same time there will also be a display of Free State produce at the Manchester Grocers' Exhibition.

RUSSIAN SUBJECTS IN BRITAIN.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT'S ORDER.

Mr. Marjoribanks, in the House of Commons on Thursday, asked whether the Home Secretary had received information respecting Russian subjects who had been ordered by the Soviet Government to return to Russia, where they were liable to be punished capitally.

The Under Secretary for the Home Office said that the Home Secretary had received a list of the names of persons dismissed from Soviet organisations in this country, and inquiry into the position of these persons was being pursued.

In reply to another question, Mr. Short stated that the Home Secretary was known to be humane, and he had no doubt that all the circumstances would be carefully considered.

THE KING AND QUEEN.

The Court Circular states that the King and Queen and the members of the Royal Family, with the ladies and gentlemen in attendance, were present at Divine Service in the private chapel at Windsor Castle yesterday morning. The Service was conducted by the Rev. Canon J. N. Dalton, Domestic Chaplain to the King.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

INDEPENDENT OR LABOUR?

A WEEK-END DECISION.

The Times of to-day, in a leading article entitled "Independent or Labour?" says:—During the week-end the I.L.P. will take a decision of some kind. There have been signs of a hardening of the heart and a greater stiffening of the neck. The National Administrative Council is to ask the Conference for a reaffirmation of the programme of "Socialism in our time"—the document which, on the Council's own admission, marked the beginning of the "irreconcilable differences of opinion" with Mr. Macdonald, "which have been deepened since his acceptance of the duties of Prime Minister." To lead the Conference in this act, while reminding it of the history of the programme, will itself be an affirmation of irreconcilability, unless modified by some other act, or such a "gesture" as is dear to the Prime Minister's heart. But the I.L.P. knees do not readily perform the more graceful gestures, and its head is carried as though an inclination would imply an unseen yoke.

Branches there are that want the Conference to insist upon "more definite and independent participation in the class struggle," as well as "complete control of party activity and leadership." That is trailing the coat and asking for trouble. But a caution has been sounded unofficially and anonymously, but loud enough to reach all who help to shape I.L.P. destinies. To go the way of the Communist Party, this greatly chiding voice has said, is to go the way of isolation and extinction. Except within the fold of the Labour Party, the I.L.P. will plough a furrow of sand. It is a voice that may be listened to; for the mind of the Conference may not have lost all its prudence, although, as recent events have shown, the heart is fast becoming estranged. In any event, what will be the position of the I.L.P. after this Conference? It is not the only Conference that makes decisions. The Labour Party does the same, and the Labour Party's decisions carry farthest. Since the I.L.P. Conference last met the Labour Party has amended its constitution, and it is required of each affiliated organisation that it must accept the programme, principles and policy of the party. There is no room for irreconcilable differences.

Again it is laid down that every Parliamentary Labour candidate must accept and conform to the constitution, programme, principles and policy of the party. Irreconcilables clearly belong elsewhere. The I.L.P. may be Independent or it may be Labour, but the days when it could be both at the same time are numbered, if not gone.

RUSSIAN COMMUNISTS AND MAY DAY.

The Riga Correspondent of The Times, in a message published to-day, quotes a leading article in Pravda, the organ of the Russian Communist Party, as stating that preparations are being made to hold May Day celebrations throughout the world, under the general slogan of "Defend the U.S.S.R." The masses of Manchester, Shanghai and Poland, and the railway men of India will be mobilised for the occasion. England, with other countries, is preparing war, the newspaper says, and it is necessary to counteract by supporting anti-imperialist colonial warfare, and by fighting the Young plan in Germany.

Lozovsky, Secretary of the Profintern (Red Trade Union International) has published in Leningrad an explanation of the chief tasks of the Profintern, the most immediate being to devise new slogans for England, Germany and Poland, to harmonise with the fresh tactics and new strike strategy of the Comintern and Profintern. The impending congress of the Profintern, he adds, must instil a fresh spirit into the international revolutionary movement, and will devote special attention to colonies.

PILOT JUMPS FROM BLAZING 'PLANE.

ENGINE BURIED IN GROUND.

A dramatic escape of a pilot by parachute from a burning aeroplane was witnessed by a large number of people at Hornchurch, Essex, yesterday.

The machine, a single-seater fighter from the R.A.F. aerodrome at Hornchurch caught fire almost over the aerodrome and soon afterwards the pilot was seen to jump from the machine with his parachute. He landed safely about a mile away.

The machine came down and hit the ground with a terrific report while flames shot high into the air. The engine was completely buried in the soil.

The pilot was Lieutenant Kobeyashi, a Japanese officer, attached to Hornchurch Aerodrome for training. He had just taken off in a solo machine, and was circling round at a height of about five thousand feet, when the 'plane burst into flames and nose dived.

An aircraftsman who witnessed the accident stated that the pilot was apparently about to "loop the loop" when the engine burst into flames, and it was only by skilful manipulation that he was able to alter the course of the machine and extricate himself in time.

Before the result of the accident was known at the aerodrome, the order was given that every machine must be taken into the air. This was done so that the pilots should not lose their nerve.

GOLF COURSE LANDING.

A light aeroplane, piloted by Mr. H. E. Burgess, made a forced landing on the North Surrey golf course, Norbury, yesterday, and several people in the vicinity had to run for safety. The pilot made a perfect landing, and, after repairing an engine defect, continued his flight.

EIGHT FIREMEN INJURED.

GLASGOW FACTORY OUTBREAK.

LONDON FIRE SCENES.

PARENTS RESCUED BY SON.

Eight firemen were injured last night while fighting a fire in Glasgow, when a thirty-foot high wall collapsed in a confined area in which they were working.

The fire, which occurred at bolt and nut factory at Helen street, Govan, had a firm hold on a store when the Govan and Glasgow Southern fire brigades arrived. The flames were prevented from spreading to neighbouring works, and in half-an-hour the outbreak was quelled.

A FALLING WALL.

When the fire appeared to be almost completely subdued there was a loud crash as large portions of the wall fell. Firemen staggered into the street from an area with blood flowing from head and arm wounds caused by the falling bricks. One fireman collapsed on the pavement, and was unconscious for some time.

Four of the firemen were admitted to the Victoria Infirmary, but the others were able to proceed to their station after first-aid treatment.

The more seriously injured were Station Officer Guthrie (47), Fireman Thomas Love (32), Fireman Michael Skelly (48), and Fireman William Davie (27).

LONDON FIRE.

THREE BADLY BURNED.

Three people were severely injured in a fire at a house in Alexander street, Old Kent road, London, yesterday. They are Emily Wood, aged 66; Thomas Wood, aged 67, and their son, Albert Wood, aged 27. They were taken to hospital and detained.

The mother and father are in a critical condition. They both have extensive burns on the head, face, arms and body. Albert Wood has severe burns on the legs and feet. Six people, five grown up, and a four years old child were in the house. Another son, Stanley Wood, aged 16, climbed out of a back bedroom window in his night attire; and Mrs. Edith Pett, a married daughter, escaped through the kitchen window.

SON SAVES PARENTS.

Albert, the son, who is in hospital, was the hero of the fire. He was discharged from the Air Force only on Thursday, after six years' service, and arrived in London on Thursday night. He was sleeping in the front room and could easily have escaped, but he rushed through the flames to the dining room, where his mother and father were trapped by the flames.

He managed to get them into the back yard through the window.

Mrs. Pett, who was in a very distressed condition, described how she saved her four-year-old daughter, Iris. "My baby and I were in the kitchen with my mother and father," she said. "Suddenly flames spread all up the wall. In a few seconds the room was alight, and the fire quickly spread to the staircase and the front door.

"I tried to get the window up, because escape through the door was out of the question. The window was jammed, so I pulled down the upper half and dropped my baby into the yard. Then I climbed through myself and tried to get my parents out. Albert rushed in and helped, and eventually we managed to get them out."

The child seemed little the worse for its fall except for a cut on the face.

EVERYTHING LOST.

"I don't know what we shall do," said one of the family tearfully. "We have lost all our clothes, and have no home and no money now. All our troubles seem to have come at once. One of the family died only a few days ago, and two others were so upset about it that they have gone away for a rest. They only left early this morning, and now we shall have to wire them to come back."

SKIDDING MOTOR COACH.

FIVE PERSONS HURT.

Five persons were injured at London Colney, near St. Albans, yesterday, when a Manchester to London motor coach, belonging to a Rochdale firm, skidded and collided with a stationary lorry.

The injured were: Vincent Garland, of Manchester; Hilda Walters, Shakespeare road, Chorlton Cum Hardy; Mrs. Hill, Old road, Blackley, Manchester; Herbert Garton, Broad street, Pendleton, and Mrs. Ann Aldred, Kershaw street, Droylesden, Manchester.

After treatment at St. Albans Hospital they were able to proceed on their journey later in the day.

COLLAPSE OF A MILL WALL.

LITTLE BOY KILLED.

One child was killed and two others were injured at Thornaby-on-Tees, Yorkshire, yesterday, by the fall of the wall of a bone mill.

The wall was seven feet high and fourteen inches thick, and the children were passing it when they heard a crumbling noise. Henry Haskins (14), of Chalk street, Stockton-on-Tees, was completely buried, but his sister, Jennie (10), and Joseph Cuthbert (11), also of Chalk street, escaped with foot injuries.

Police and volunteers set to work to clear away the stones, but it was twenty minutes before the body of Haskins was recovered.

The accident was witnessed by the Town Clerk of Thornaby, Mr. J. R. Carr, who said that the wall came away in one huge mass, and collapsed half-way across the road.

DECAY OF BUSINESS IN SMALL TOWNS.

EFFECTS OF "TRAVELLING SHOPS."

TRADE UNION'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks will hold their twenty-eighth annual delegate meeting to-morrow and Monday in Jury's Hotel, Dublin.

The report to be submitted states that conditions of trade in the country had not shown any appreciable improvement during the year ended 31st December, 1929. The development of road transport had permanently injured the commercial position of the smaller towns, and yet more recently the development throughout rural Ireland of house-to-house shopping—what was known as the "travelling shop"—had had further injurious effects on the dwindling trade of the provincial towns.

While the volume of business reaching the towns was diminishing, there was a marked tendency for the number of distributing firms to increase. In Dublin, Cork, Belfast, and, indeed, in almost every town of any importance in the country, there were many more shops now than fifteen years ago. The result of this multiplication of shops and distributing agencies was to diminish the volume of business available for each, to set up an element of unreal and unregulated competition, and to maintain a price level that was wholly unjustified. If half the existing shops were abolished the prices of commodities to the public could be reduced very substantially. In order to cover overhead charges, working expenses, and a moderate rate on capital investment under existing conditions, traders required to obtain an average of profit out of all proportion to the services rendered.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS.

The conditions of employment for commercial employés, according to the report, have been worsened by the multiplication of uneconomic selling agencies. It could not be wondered at, therefore, that a large proportion of young people who entered commercial emlpoyment emigrated or drifted into other callings after having wasted the most precious years of their lives endeavouring to master the technicalities of a business which was unable to offer them a livelihood as adults.

There was no hope of a substantial improvement in the conditions of commercial life throughout the country until steps were taken to diminish the number of retail shops and to raise the standard of efficiency for those employed in commerce.

The report stated that 1,410 new members were enrolled during the year, which brought the total number enrolled in the organisation during twenty-eight years up to 42,373. Meantime the number of members lost through lapses or other causes was 1,592.

The membership of the organisation on 31st December last was 6,093, or 224 less than the preceding year. The receipts for the year were £10,350, or £66 less than the previous year. The payments in respect of benefits were—sickness £1,576, unemployment £792, death £185, and benevolent grants £33. Income exceeded expenditure by £19.

The number of persons unemployed in the distributive trades was as large as at any time during the past seven years.

"MULTIPLE" SHOPS.

Branches of "multiple" shops with foreign headquarters, according to the report, had been opening up in many parts of the country, particularly in the larger centres, and had the effect of squeezing out a number of the general drapery and general grocery type of house. Owing to the manner in which the newcomers organised their business the amount of employment they afforded was relatively small compared with their turnover.

In the opinion of the framers of the report, the extension of this type of foreign-owned business in this country was a menace to the country's commerce and industry, and unless State action was taken to restrict its growth the extension of the foreign-owned business in the country would have disastrous results.

In certain Dublin houses there was a tendency to employ certain sections of the staff on overtime without payment. Members of the organisation, the report declared, should not work overtime except in special circumstances, and they should be paid for overtime.

The members were urged to bring pressure to bear on local deputies to secure support in the Dail for the Shop Hours Bill.

The report concluded by stating that if the union is to continue its usefulness steps should be taken to secure for it the adherence of all shop workers and clerks throughout the country.

POTATO-GROWING IN COOLEY.

COMPLAINT AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

RESTRICTION OF AREA OF SALE.

(FROM OUR AGRICULTURAL CORRESPONDENT.)

CARLINGFORD, Friday.

Because the export trade on which they depended has come to a standstill, and because they are not permitted to sell their produce outside the scheduled area in the Irish Free State, potato-growers in the Cooley area of County Louth feel that they have a grievance against the Free State Government.

They consider that the Department of Agriculture is treating them harshly by refusing to let them sell their potatoes wherever they like. At the moment they would rather sell in Dundalk, the principal local marketing centre, because prices are higher than in England, where there is a glut of home-grown produce.

Few of these people grow any other crop except barley and a small quantity of oats, while, as regards livestock, their efforts are confined largely to a few sheep on the hillside and cows sufficient to supply their own needs in the way of milk.

Under a proper course of rotation this peninsula on Carlingford Lough could easily be the most intensively cultivated district in the country. Even now I know of no more closely tilled area in Ireland. Every yard of arable land is under the plough, and as the soil, which is largely of a gravelly nature, has proved highly suitable for potatoes, that crop has been exploited as much as possible.

In a normal season some eight thousand tons of potatoes are shipped. This year the quantity already exported at low prices is about two thousand tons, and it is possible that another thousand tons may be disposed of. This leaves five thousand tons lying in the pits to sprout, and possibly to rot if they cannot be fed to pigs. They cannot be cleared even at the prevailing rates of from ten shillings to fifteen shillings per ton for Tinwalds in ten-ton lots. That would be hard-earned money, but most of the Cooley growers would be glad to get it.

AN INDIVIDUAL CASE.

A few miles from Carlingford I met one farmer who, apparently, has been more fortunate than his neighbours. He had ten acres under potatoes last season. The cost of manuring and spraying, he says, amounted to £112, but in order to get rid of the crop he was glad to take ten shippings per ton for 120 tons shipped at Greenore, a figure which represents a very heavy loss.

Yields vary from twelve to fifteen and twenty tons per acre, but my informant was not precise as to his own average.

Unlike the majority of farmers in Cooley, this man is not obliged to take conacre—which may be described as the drawback of the whole Cooley potato industry. Smallholders and others without a rood of ground paid from £6 to £8 per acre for conacre for potatoes last year. With the cost of manuring and labour added they cannot hope to pay expenses much less to make a profit at the present scale of values. As a result, a shrinkage in the area under potatoes is expected in Cooley this season. Some growers, not expecting a really bad season, have decided to hold on to their conacre, but the letting price has fallen between £1 and £2 per acre, as this is expected to be sufficient to enable growers to meet their liabilities.

The more farseeing farmers have decided to devote some of their potato ground to sugar beet, of which four hundred acres extra may be grown in Cooley this season. This will bring the total area under sugar beet in Cooley to 550 acres, which will at least produce a guaranteed return.

In order to prevent any possibility of black scab spores being distributed through the agency of sugar beet the roots from Cooley when received at Carlow factory are specially treated so that any danger on this score is reduced to the minimum.

Barley grown in this area is largely exported to Great Britain, while a considerable quantity is also sent to County Antrim. This season prices ranged from fourteen shillings to fifteen shillings and sixpence per barrel, while oats, in face of keen competition, realised from ten shillings to eleven shillings per barrel, though any now available are making only nine shillings per barrel.

Seaweed and an artificial mixture containing eight per cent. nitrogen are the fertilisers used. The few live-stock kept preclude the widespread use of farmyard manure, and the fact that potatoes are grown year after year in the same soil without any serious defect, except the possible presence of black scab, shows what can be done by the judicious use of artificial fertilisers.

CULTIVATING SEAWEED.

As to seaweed, most of the farmers have some right to the shore, and can get it for the cutting. In some cases rocks are brought down to the beach so that seaweed can cling to them, and in that way be cultivated like any other crop.

In passing through this area between the Carlingford Mountains and the Lough, the visitor is impressed by the absence of effective fences where cattle are grazing. If he looks closer, he will see that the animals are tethered, as in the Channel Islands or in Denmark, and when being brought to their sheds they are led by a rope and halter.

Where live-stock are kept they receive a limited quantity of potatoes. This has to be regulated carefully, because the scouring tendency of potatoes when fed to excess is well known.

'BUS DRIVERS' WAGES.

IRISH COMPANY'S NEW SCALES.

500 MEN AFFECTED.

A serious situation has arisen between the Irish Omnibus Company and its drivers, as a result of a revision of the men's wages by the company this week.

The new scale of wages takes effect as from to-day, but notice of it was issued to the men, who number about 500, last Tuesday.

At a meeting of the men, held on Wednesday night last, a resolution was passed protesting emphatically against the new conditions, and calling upon the Executive of their Union to take immediate steps to cancel them.

The resolution also called upon the railway men to support them in their efforts against "the worsening of our conditions even to the extent of a national strike."

The drivers are members of the National Union of Railwaymen.

THE WAGES SCALE.

Under the old conditions the wages of the drivers ranged from 60s. to 80s., but under the new scale the basic wage for all drivers is fixed at 60s., with certain allowances.

In an interview with an Irish Times representative yesterday an official of the company explained that the new scales would work out for the benefit of the men. About seventy per cent. of them will receive increases as the result, while twenty per cent. will remain as they are. Only about ten per cent. will suffer any reduction, but even that will be very slight, and will be little compared with the advantages that will accrue to the vast majority of the men.

The new scale fixes the starting wage of the drivers under Grade 2 at 55s. instead of at 60s. as before. This rate operates only for one month—a probationary period—during which the men acquaint themselves with their vehicles and work, and with the rules and regulations of service. At the end of that month, when they show themselves proficient, they are automatically promoted to Grade 1., when they receive a weekly wage of 60s.

THE ALLOWANCES.

This rate applies to drivers who receive one day per week off and whose actual driving hours per day do not exceed eight, and to drivers on city and local routes who receive one day per fortnight off and whose working hours per day does not exceed seven.

In addition to this basic rate there are certain allowances given. On services which involve the driver not returning to his starting point on the expiration of his term of duty the allowance is 5s. per week. On services which involve more than eight hours' actual driving, with one day per week off, or seven hours' actual driving, with one day off per fortnight, a route allowance at the rate of 1s. 6d. per hour, over and above the specified eight or seven hours, will be given. On services which involve the driver lodging at the route terminals on alternate nights the allowance will be 10s. per week.

Drivers allocated to services which entail their sleeping away from their depots in the one place all the time are not entitled to this allowance. Every effort would however, be made to allocate drivers to routes on which they would be able to sleep in their home towns.

OTHER SPECIAL RATES.

In addition to these allowances, other special rates would be made to drivers, other than spare drivers, who might be called upon to drive on trips before or after their normal hours of duty, at the rate of 3s. per trip. Drivers on relief duty, which entails their sleeping at a place other than their starting point, will receive a lodging allowance at the rate of 3s. per day, and they will also receive a route allowance of 1s. 6d. per hour, over and above their actual eight hours of driving.

These were the terms of the new scale, this official stated, and the whole trouble arose in the beginning, because the men had only glanced at the opening statements and had not really digested the scale and understood it fully. Now he thought that they did, and that there would not be any more trouble. The company certainly did not anticipate any, and, in fact, were getting every available 'bus on the roads for the holiday week-end.

OPERATION OF THE NEW SCALE.

The result of the new scale would be to give, as was stated, seventy per cent. of the men increased pay, some very much so.

In the case of the drivers on the Dublin to Portumna route, they would be receiving the 60s., plus 10s. lodging allowance, and, as they worked eleven hours per day, they would altogether get £4 12s. under the new scale. Then again on the Carlow service, where the men worked only thirty hours per week, the new wage would be 65s., instead of 70s. as before, but these drivers would do at least two special trips in the week at 3s. per trip, so that they would really benefit by about 1s.

On the long-distance routes, such as to Galway, Sligo, and Limerick, on which the drivers before received 80s. per week, they would now receive 60s., plus 10s. lodging allowance, 5s. country allowance, and at least a couple of special trips, so that they would not be one bit worse off.

MORE MEN EMPLOYED.

Rather than mean a saving on the company, the new scale would entail increased expenditure on the actual present wages; it would necessitate the employment of nine more drivers at the Broadstone dépôt alone.

As regards the conductors, the company were considering their position, and a statement would be issued shortly which would be for their benefit.

The thing for the drivers to do now, this official continued, was to wait and see how the new scale operated, and then they would find that they would be more than satisfied with it.

THE BROADSTONE DEPOT.

At the Broadstone dépôt of the company, which has 228 'buses, yesterday, every person was working at high speed to get every available 'bus on the road. Although the dépôt only lately has been taken over and converted from a railway terminus into a 'bus dépôt, the company have built up a wonderful series of workshops there, where they can not only completely overhaul all their engines and chassis, but also build and rebuild bodies.

They have test benches with air brakes, and the most modern machinery in the workshops.

STATEMENT FOR THE MEN.

Mr. Cecil D. Watters, organising secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, said that the position of the Irish Omnibus Company and its employés took the form of a lock-out; the men had either to accept the new conditions laid down by the company or leave their work. The new conditions were being fixed without consultation with the representatives of the men.

"The attitude of the company," he said, "is a repudiation of the right of collective bargaining. If its conditions will stand investigation, there should be no difficulty in submitting them to the union for consideration before putting them into operation."

Mr. Watters complained that the company had not even accorded the men's union the usual courtesy of a reply to letters sent by the men's representatives.

He complained further of "victimisation," and concluded:—"in the interests of the public, I make an offer to the I.O.C., that these proposals be withdrawn, and I am prepared to meet the representatives of the company immediately to investigate the whole question with a view to reaching an amicable settlement."

THE REV. F. FITZGERALD-DOHERTY.

The death occurred on Tuesday last, following an operation, of the Rev. Francis FitzGerald-Doherty, M.A., D.D., Rector of South Hackney Parish, London, and formerly Vicar of St. Clement's, Belfast. Mr. FitzGerald-Doherty was a graduate of the Royal University of Ireland. Some years after his ordination in 1888 he was appointed to the curacy of Clones, County Monaghan, and later was Rector of St. Mark's, Augher, County Tyrone. He was Rector of St. Clement's, Belfast, from 1906 to 1912. For six years he took an active interest in the working of the Mission to Seamen, being District Secretary of the Ireland North-West Branch.

MR. E. A. COLLINS, K.C.

SUDDEN DEATH IN DUBLIN.

A LOSS TO DISTRICT COURT BENCH.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Edward A. Collins, K.C., District Justice, Dublin, which took place suddenly on Thursday morning last, as he was on his way to the District Court. His sudden and unexpected death came as a shock to his relatives and a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Collins was engaged in the performance of his duties as a magistrate on Wednesday, as usual, and although he had a slight pain that night he made little of it, and next morning set out from his residence in Upper Mount street for the District Court. He entered a tramcar, but soon afterwards became ill.

Believing that fresh air would revive him, he alighted, with help, at a point near Holles street. He fell unconscious on the sidewalk, and two members of the Civic Guard—Sergeant Rooney and Guard Nevins—immediately came to his assistance, and he was removed as promptly as possible to Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, where he was found to be dead.

AN IMPARTIAL MAGISTRATE.

Mr. Collins was the eldest son of the late Mr. George Collins, a partner in the firm of Casey, Clay and Collins, the well-known Dublin solicitors, and had reached the age of fifty-four years. He was educated at Belvedere College, and graduated B.A. from the old Royal University. As a law student he gained several distinctions, among them being the Victoria Prize. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1897, and for a period acted as secretary to the late Lord Chancellor Walker, and subsequently in a similar capacity to the late Lord Chancellor Redmond Barry. He had a very good practice at the Bar, and in 1921 he took "silk." In the following year he was appointed a Divisional Magistrate for the City of Dublin.

Mr. Collins performed his duties with scrupulous care and well-balanced judgment. He was a good lawyer, and he administered justice impartially, but always with a leaning towards the side of mercy in cases in which the accused persons happened to be the victims of circumstances over which they had little or no control. He was always kind and generous to the poor, and he earned the respect of all those who came in contact with him, lay as well as professional. His two brothers, Messrs. George and Frank Collins, are members of the old firm of Casey, Clay and Collins.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

JUSTICES' TRIBUTES.

Mr. George P. Cussen, LL.B., Senior District Justice, who in the ordinary course would not have been in Court on Thursday, arrived there at 12 o'clock to deal with some important cases.

Before entering upon the business before the Court, Mr. Cussen said:—"Before this Court opens I have to state the sad event which obliges me to sit here to-day. My colleague, Mr. Edward Collins, died suddenly this morning on his way to Court. Mr. Collins has, indeed, died in harness. To my own knowledge, for several years his health has been indifferent, but during all these years he was only absent on sick leave for one day. In his death I lose a very dear friend and a loyal colleague, and we all lose the services of an impartial and learned judge, and one who, above all, was humane in his dealings with all who came before him."

THE SOLICITORS' PROFESSION.

Mr. J. P. Collins, solicitor, on behalf of the legal profession, associated himself with the observations of the Justice. They had, he said, all learned with deep regret of the death of Mr. Collins. The members of the profession who had practised before him knew how fair he was, and knew also his devotion to duty. The news of his death came as a great shock to them all.

The Justice—Thank you, Mr. Collins.

Later in the afternoon, Mr. D. O'Flaherty (Chief State Solicitor's Office) took the opportunity of joining in the expressions of sorrow at the death of Mr. Collins, and said that he and the late Mr. Collins were at college together, so that he felt his loss greatly.

Mr. Clarke, solicitor, also of the Chief State Solicitor's Office, said that he had experienced nothing but the utmost kindness and consideration from Mr. Collins on all occasions.

Mr. Cussen—Thank you. Professionally we will miss him, and the poor will miss him.

MR. LITTLE'S COURT.

Mr. Little, who presided in the other District Court, also referred to the death of Mr. Collins.

"I have just heard that my esteemed colleague, Mr. E. A. Collins, K.C., is no more," said Mr. Little. "He died this morning on his way to his duties. I need hardly observe that I am deeply shocked at the tragic news, for we have been colleagues for a great number of years. More than that, we were boys together; we were schoolboys together, and we were colleagues together at the King's Inns. I feel it difficult under the sad circumstances to give expression to my feelings, but I must say that I believe that Mr. Collins has passed as he would have wished—showing his intense devotion to duty, to rectitude, and to his admirable character and record.

"The late Mr. Collins was a man of kindliest disposition, of outstanding integrity, and a man whose passing will be deeply regretted amongst his colleagues, and by a large circle of friends who met him in these Courts. I can say no more at the moment."

LEGAL PRACTITIONERS GRIEVED.

Mr. S. H. Burne, solicitor, ex-President of the Incorporated Law Society, said that on behalf of himself and his colleagues he could say with sincerity that no such shock has been experienced in the Police Courts during his experience. The shock was so great that it was difficult to find words to express how they all felt at the tragic end of Mr. Collins. In the death of Mr. Collins the District Court bench had lost an excellent magistrate and a sterling friend of the poor. Not only was Mr. Collins kind to the poor who came before him in the District Court, but he was also considerate to the more lowly placed in other circumstances.

Mr. P. H. O'Brien, solicitor, said that he joined heartily in the observations of Mr. Burne, and he emphasised the statement that Mr. Collins was good to the poor in many ways that were not generally known. He felt that the late Mr. Collins was deserving of an epitaph in the words of Shakespeare:—

"He was a man, take him for all in all,
We shall not look upon his like again."

Inspector Richard O'Connell, of the Metropolitan Civic Guard, associated himself with the tributes.

U.S MARKETS.

STOCKS CLOSE FIRM.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.
NEW YORK, Thursday.

An irregular tendency featured the opening of the Stock market, with trends divergent and confusing reflecting the pre-holiday readjustment of speculative accounts. The market early presented a reactionary appearance, when pressure was renewed against Rails and Coppers, but the general trend turned upward in the afternoon, with Farm Implement and Amusement issues to the forefront. Trading was only moderate, many operators being disinclined to add to their commitments over the holiday. Call money dropped from 4 to 3½ per cent. owing to plentiful supplies, and only a moderate demand. Renewed weakness in Coppers was based upon unconfirmed rumours that a further cut in the price of the commodity is likely. In late dealings covering prior to the holiday resulted in a broad advance, in which several investment Rails were included. The closing was firm. American Machine Foundry advanced 2 points, Ingersoll Rand 16, Case Threshing Machine 10, Vanadium 11, Allied Chemical 7, and Air Reduction, Auburn Auto, Electric Power and Light, Fox Film, General Electric, Houston Oil, Lowes Incorporated, Radio Corporation, Southern Railway, Westinghouse Electric and Diamond Match gained 3 to 6 points; while American Car and Foundries, Anaconda Copper, Chesapeake and Ohio, Goodyear Tire, Granby Consolidated and St. Joseph Lead declined 2 to 5 points. Government Bonds quiet; Railroad Bonds firm. The day's sales totalled 3,932,000 shares.

WHEAT opened steady and 1/8c. up to unchanged. Recessions followed on reports of very heavy offerings of winter wheat to Europe, and private advices of good rains in West Kansas. Then the market rallied under covering and a forecast of frost in Kansas and Oklahoma. Later values broke under bearish reports regarding seeding in the North-West and realising. STRUGGLE FOR LIFE IN GALE.

LIVERPOOL STEAMER'S PERIL.

A Liverpool crew's desperate efforts to keep their vessel from foundering during a gale on Thursday last were described when the coasting steamer, Gertie (55 tons), reached Fleetwood yesterday in tow. The Gertie left Garston at midnight on Tuesday for the Isle of Man, but trouble occurred when steam began to fail shortly after noon on Wednesday.

Captain Cowzer told a Press Association reporter that the fires had to be drawn. "A north-westerly gale prevailed, and high seas were accompanied by a heavy swell," he said. "Our vessel began to drift, and to steady her we had to hoist our sails. A few hours later the Lowestoft drifter Constant Star was sighted. We signalled to her, and when a tow rope had been made fast the drifter endeavoured to tow us towards the Isle of Man. The rope only held for an hour, and three more ropes also broke. We found it useless trying to make for the Isle of Man, and decided to make for Fleetwood. The weather was getting worse all the time, and, after breaking eight tow ropes, neither the Constant Star nor ourselves had any ropes left.

"We then began to drift away, and we thought we were finished. Heavy seas were sweeping us from stern to stem. The mate and myself were clinging to the wheel on the bridge, trying to steer the vessel, while two other members of the crew were laid down on the bridge. We had axes on the bridge, so that if the worst happened we could jump down and chop the small boat free, and escape in it. We thought we were finished, the vessel being awash.

"At last the Lowestoft drifter Mare got a rope on board, and the tow to Fleetwood was started."

All the crew of the Gertie were loud in their praise of the skippers of both drifters in getting their vessels alongside, and handling them so well in the darkness.

FOUR MEN RESCUED BY STEAMER.

Four Derbyshire men were landed at Weymouth yesterday after an exciting adventure in an old lifeboat in the Channel. The boat was taken in tow fifteen miles south of Portland by the British steamer Helenus early yesterday, and, according to a wireless message sent from the steamer, the occupants were in distress. The men were taken in an exhausted condition to a hotel on their arrival at Weymouth.

SUTTON RUGBY PLAYER'S DEATH.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned at the inquest which was held by Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for South County Dublin, in the Royal City of Dublin Hospital last Thursday on the body of Maurice H. Spencer, of Sutton Cottage, Sutton, who was injured when playing for the Sutton Rugby football team last Saturday, and died on Monday.

William James Spencer, brother, gave evidence of identification. He said that on April 12 his brother was playing football at Sutton, with the Sutton team against a Dublin team. A couple of minutes after the end of the game the deceased man said that he did not feel well, and collapsed.

Witness added that the match was played in a sporting spirit, and there was no vindictiveness or anything of the kind. Nothing had occurred in the course of the game to which objection could have been taken. The scrummages were properly formed.

Robert Horan, Howth, who refereed the match, stated that he had a good view of what went on throughout the progress of the game. It was conducted in a sportsmanlike fashion. The members of the Sutton team belonged to the locality, and there was no ill-feeling.

Dr. Nora Stack, Royal City of Dublin Hospital, said that the deceased man was admitted to the hospital at 10 p.m. on Monday suffering from a ruptured spleen. He was operated on, and died at midnight. Death was due to shock.

Surgeon Francis Henry, Upper Fitzwilliam street, said that he performed the operation on Spencer. The spleen had been ruptured. Deceased man told witness that he was tackled from behind. He was not quite certain how. He was struck in the left side of the abdomen by the head or knee of a player. He was definite that he had not been kicked. He made no statement about being fouled. The injuries could have been caused in a way such as that described.

The Coroner said that it was quite evident that the game was conducted in a sportsmanlike way. It was quite obvious that the injury was accidentally caused, and everything possible was done for the deceased man.

A verdict as stated was returned.

IBSTOCK MAY WIN AT PLUMPTON.

SOUTHWELL FANCIES.

(FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Friday Night.

Two minor jumping meetings to-morrow comprise all that England has to offer in the way of racing entertainment to holiday-makers on Easter Saturday.

One is at Plumpton, a pleasant little fixture on the South coast, which puts up a £250 steeplechase, the Preston Handicap, run over three miles. There is a really good entry for this race, including several who ran in the Grand National. Glangesia, who was fourth at Aintree, is engaged, as he is also in the Lancashire Steeplechase on Monday at Manchester. Counting on the absence of Glangesia, the race may be won by IBSTOCK, who will be ridden by his owner, Mr. Kenyon Goode.

BEGGAR'S END is a well-known performer at Plumpton, and he may win the Clayton Handicap Steeplechase. In his absence, Shadow might be the best. The Easter Handicap Hurdle may be won by ROI DE SABA.

The other meeting is at Southwell, where ELIZABETH ANN may win the Mansfield Hurdle and PIXIE the Rufford Handicap Steeplechase.

IRISH GRAND NATIONAL.

BIG FIELD FOR MONDAY'S RACE.

The Irish Grand National, to be run at Fairyhouse on Monday, promises to be an exceptionally attractive race, and it is expected that a field of about thirty horses will start. Roman Boy, we are informed, will not be a runner, but the majority of the probables, which we append, are likely to go to the post. Many candidates are very much fancied, and the race should provide a suitable test for capabilities of the totalisator, which will for the first time be used on an Irish racecourse.

PHŒNIX PARK.

TREMINNIE'S CHANCE IN LODER PLATE.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

The holiday racing season will be given a good send-off this afternoon at Phœnix Park, where, as usual, two-year old events form the most important items on the programme.

There is an interesting problem to be solved in the Loder Plate, in which Cornstack and Treminnie will meet to fight their battle of a fortnight ago over again. It will be remembered that in the Greer Plate on April 5th Cornstack got the better of Treminnie by a matter of three lengths, and, as Swilly Rock finished behind the pair, the form suggests that the two are at the top flight of the two-year-olds—at any rate, of those of them that have so far been seen out. Treminnie to-day has a pull of 12lb. in the weights, and opinions are divided as to whether this will be sufficient to enable her to reverse the previous placings. It is a big difference, and the likelihood is that Mr. Slocock's filly will on this occasion get the better of the argument. There are others in the race of whose form little is known, but the probability is that the race will resolve itself into a match between the two named.

THE "IRISH FIELD."

Racing and racing affairs play a prominent part in the contents of this week's Irish Field (published to-day, price 2d.), and very properly so, considering the important period it is in the racing year, and the interesting events which are happening. For example, the coming of the Totalisator to Ireland, its first public trial on an Irish racecourse being due on Monday next at Fairyhouse. To-day, in fact, is the end of the old régime as regards betting; and to-day we have the ever-popular Phœnix Park races. Programmes and selections for this, and also for Fairyhouse and Tramore, and Mallow and the Curragh April Meetings will be found in our contemporary, and also the full programme for Punchestown.

Then the wide range of English racing at Easter is not overlooked; for programmes and selections for the week are given. Nor are other sports and pastimes overlooked, each being given due attention. Cricket, for example, in the shape of a glance over the different Irish clubs; as well as Rugby and Association Football doings, Lawn Tennis, Swimming, Golf, Motoring and, lastly, but not least, the Kennel world, the Irish Field being the official organ for the I.K.C. This week's number, in fact, is a full one, and extends to 28 pages.

GOFF'S PUNCHESTOWN SALES.

Messrs. Goff and Co.'s annual Punchestown Sales take place at the racecourse on April 29th and 30th (the days of the meeting), and at the Repository, in Lower Mount street, Dublin, on the following Thursday and Friday. Some fifty lots, comprising horses in training, point-to-point winners and hunters, will be submitted during intervals of racing on the Tuesday and Wednesday. Then on Thursday and Friday a lengthy catalogue of 160 horses will be brought under the hammer, and these include the late Mr. H. J. Tully's stud. Amongst them are those good performers: Star Eireann, who has won sixteen races; Thorny Way, winner of six races, and Bonnie Baby, winner of seven races; Hose Blanc and Lady Torment, both of whom are also winners.

The full catalogue appears in to-day's Irish Field.

PLUMPTON TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

SPEAR O' WAR THE MOST FANCIED.

PORPORINO'S CHANCE.

At Plumpton this afternoon the Preston Handicap Steeplechase will be contested by a representative field of stayers, and local Surrey and Sussex stables are strongly represented. Gilbert Bennett, of Alfriston, is likely to saddle a fancied candidate in Spear o' War, whilst George Poole, the Lewes trainer, can choose from Holiday Hall, Castletown and Ibstock. Whichever runs will be well fancied, but I think that Spear o' War is entitled to preference on the form he showed at Sandown Park a month ago when second to St. Germaine, to whom he was conceding 29lb. There are possibilities about Glangesia, who managed to finish fourth in the Grand National, but whether he will be capable of winning at these weights is problematical, and I select Spear o' War.

The Easter Handicap Hurdle Race is very open in character, and in a big field I narrow down the issue to Frank Wootton's Porporino, Walter Nightingall's Roi de Saba, and George Poole's St. Michael's Mount. The last-named may meet a later engagement, and the best to stand may be Porporino, who has been successful in three of his previous races this season, and who is not harshly handicapped with 11st. 6lb.

Beggar's End is fully expected to give Fred. Rees a winning ride in the Clayton Steeplechase over two miles, although he will have to be at his best to account for Holiday Hall and Shadow.

The Stayers' Handicap Hurdle Race over three miles will be a sure test of stamina, and the best stayer at the weights is likely to be St. Michael's Mount, who is let off very lightly with 10st. 13lb.

The scratching of Voltero out of all engagements this year includes the Queen's Prize, Kempton Park, which will be decided on Monday.

SOUTHWELL.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

There is not likely to be any scarcity of runners at this meeting. From Lambourn I am informed that Golden Ermine will win his selected event, which is likely to be the Bleasby Hurdle. In the Mansfield Handicap choice falls on Wisdom Gift, who finished second to Orpall at Catterick Bridge last month; and if Moontoy contests the Primrose Day Hurdle there should be no need to look elsewhere for the probable winner. Brimblescombe is fancied each way for the Newark Steeplechase.

Primrose Day Hurdle—Moontoy (nap).

A FOUR-BALL MATCH AT DOLLYMOUNT.

DUNCAN OUT OF FORM.

Everyone who attended George Duncan's lectures at Clery's this week seemed to have turned up at Dollymount yesterday to "see how it was done"; but Duncan on the platform and Duncan in action on the links are different golfers. It was impossible to detect that initial right leg movement which, he assured us, sets the top of the handle in motion; in fact, although Duncan does not put his complicated theory into practice with every stroke, the swing is executed so swiftly that only a slow-moving camera could bring out clearly in his play the five movements which he insists on in the case of others. Nor did those intricate movements produce the expected results; iron shots were cut into trouble—at least one chip shot from the back of the green was fluffed in a way that must have brought joy to the heart of the 25 handicap player who watched him do it—and on a few occasions, from those "holeable putts of six or eight yards," he was at least a yard short.

The fact was that the Scot was out of practice, and it was not until the afternoon match had left the twelfth green that he recovered anything like his best form.

Duncan in the morning was partnered by Fred Smyth, the Royal Dublin professional, against Mr. I. F. Jameson and Mr. C. W. Robertson. Smyth in his equipment presented a striking contrast to his partner, with the heads of his six new-steel shafted clubs hidden in the latest of covers, which bore the letters, "D," "B," "S," denoting driver, brassey and spoon, while Duncan used a few well-worn, shabby-looking irons and a couple of ordinary dark "steel" woods. With these he hit many great drives, although they were not always straight. Obviously, with the crooked ones he was bringing in the right hip at impact—result (as he puts it), a bad slice. The amateurs also used "steel" drivers and brassies, and in the drives, generally, the professionals rarely got much outside them.

In the morning Duncan and Smyth, who conceded two holes, went off with a succession of wins, and the amateurs were in a hopeless position at the turn, being then four down. Homeward, however, they did much better, but they could not make up the lost ground, and were beaten 5 and 3.

For the second match Duncan was partnered by Mr. Jameson, and Smyth by Mr. Robertson. It was finely contested, but the golf was disappointing, the approximate scores to the turn, against the wind, being Duncan 40, Mr. Jameson 39, Mr. Robertson 38 and Smyth 40. Duncan had a 6 at the second, where he was trapped, and another half-dozen at the fifth. They turned with Mr. Robertson and Smyth one up, the professional almost holing for a 2 with a spectacular shot from the slope of the bunker on the right of the ninth, while the others each required 4's. At the tenth Duncan with a 4 squared, and his side took the lead three holes further on. The remaining holes to the 17th were halved, and, with Duncan in the ditch for the 18th tee, Smyth out of bounds with his second, and Robertson almost on on the right in two, the match looked like finishing even, but Mr. Robertson was not up with his third, was in and out of the hole with his putt, and 5's all gave Duncan and Mr. Jameson the match by one hole.

CROSS-CHANNEL NOTES.

(BY "R. A.")

Great disappointment will be felt not only in Ireland, but in many quarters over here, at the absence of Major C. O. Hezlet from this year's Walker Cup team. After a lengthy wait ten have been chosen, of whom eight will play each day, and the last three places have been allotted to Scotsmen—Robert Harris, F. Campbell and J. A. Lang. Their countrymen, T. A. Torrance and J. N. Smith, had already been selected, together with five Englishmen, R. H. Wethered, C. J. H. Tolley, Sir E. Holderness, Rex Hartley and J. A. Stout. As the Selection Committee consists of six Scots to three Englishmen, their national pride would be affronted if the land north of the border did not hold at least a 50 per cent. representation.

I have said before that you could pick three teams of eight in the United Kingdom, match them in a triangular contest, and then not be certain of the winners. I think that we are represented by a very good team, and it only remains to wish them the best of luck and hope that they will find the top of their form at the critical moment. Let us bury criticism until after the match, when it will be permissible to exhume the body for a lively autopsy.

The Roehampton Tournament last week, although notorious for curious results, is yet some criterion for form in the future. The winner, Mark Seymour, once again proves the fact that when an amateur turns professional he adds greatly to his game. Look at Tommy Armour, Abe Mitchell, and now Seymour, who, as an amateur, won the Golf Illustrated Gold Vase, but nothing else of note. Henry Cotton did well, and it seems that his Argentine tour has done him a deal of good. Last year, on returning from an American tour, he scarcely lived up to his reputation, and also developed a petulant spirit.

These American winter trips seem to upset some people—witness the case of Arthur Havers. After winning the Championship in 1923, he went on an American tour and completely lost the art of playing a mashie niblick shot, while Sandy Herd, on another trip, lost his famous waggle and took some time to regain it. Havers appears to be on better terms with his mashie niblick this year, for up to date he is showing vastly improved form.

It was nice to see that gallant old veteran, J. G. Sherlock, in the semi-final; for it was not his fault that he was born too soon and had always to fight the great triumvirate. The runner-up, however, deserves our greatest sympathy. Time after time has Fred. Robson been well in the running for the Open Championship, only to see that little imp of a ball doing its best to thwart him. "Bad luck," most people say, but Robson never murmurs, and, if he could pull off the Open Championship, the goddess of luck would still be in his debt.

The Halford Hewitt Cup always produces keen rivalry between the old public school men who represent their respective seats of learning. It is a knock-out foursome tournament, ten representing every school, and this year there were thirty-one entries. Many of the matches were so close that the air round the eighteenth green was continually humming with excitement.

Old Carthusians, represented by J. B. Beck and R. L. Burdon Sanderson, T. A. Bourn and G. N. P. Humphries, J. Thompson and J. J. Marston, R. G. Morrison and C. F. Woodbridge, and V. C. H. Longstaffe and J. S. F. Morrison, eventually won, but only after desperate fighting. In the second round they only defeated the Old Etonians by a putt, and, in the semi-final, the Old Harrovians by three matches to two. Although they defeated the Old Uppinghamians by four matches to one in the final, they might just as easily have lost by three matches to two, so close were the games.

LIONEL MUNN'S RETURN TO ENGLISH GOLF.

FINE PLAY BY FORMER IRISH CHAMPION.

A feature of the first two rounds of the Lord Brassey Challenge Cup Tournament of the Royal Cinque Ports Club, at Deal yesterday, was the fine form shown by Lionel Munn, the many-times holder of the Irish Championship, who made his reappearance in English golf after an absence of some years.

Munn, the backmarker, at plus 1, defeated a handicap 16 golfer in T. H. C. Dunn by 8 and 7 in the first round, and later beat Dendy Watney (7) by 7 and 5.

The Mayor of Sligo (Mr. W. F. Browne) has kindly consented to preside at the meeting in Sligo Town Hall to-morrow, summoned by the Connaught Provincial Council, for the formation of an athletic club in Sligo. Judging by the interest already evinced, this meeting promises to be most representative, and augurs well for the future of Western athletics.

LAWN TENNIS.

DAVIS CUP PRACTICE.

ARRIVAL OF J. NEGRO.

J. Negro, the Italian professional, who made such an improvement in the Irish team last season, arrived in Dublin yesterday morning. It is intended, unless heavy rain prevents it, to start Davis Cup practice under Negro's supervision at 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon. In accordance with his agreement with the Irish Lawn Tennis Association, Negro will devote four hours a day to coaching the team. The rest of his time will be free, and he will be available for private lessons.

E. A. McGuire and J. G. B. Mack will, of course, be here to begin practice at once, but the other member of the team as so far picked, G. Lyttleton Rogers, is not expected to arrive till next Monday week. Rogers has been playing in a tournament at Biarritz during the week and has an engagement to play in another next week, at the conclusion of which he intends to travel straight to Dublin. Negro expresses himself as very optimistic with regard to Ireland's chance of winning the match against Monaco, and confirms the reports of Rogers's great advance since last season.

IRISH HARD COURT CHAMPIONSHIPS.

PLAY STARTS TO-DAY.

The draw for the Irish hard court championship meeting, which begins this afternoon at the Fitzwilliam L.T.C., was made last Thursday evening, and has worked out excellently. The men's championship singles attracted a big entry, and the top half includes such players as J. W. Lane, Dr. R. E. Tottenham, B. R. Towers and J. B. Ganly. Most of the strongest players happened to come in the lower half, and among them were the Davis Cup players, E. A. McGuire and G. S. B. Mack. In view of the approaching match against Monaco these men are anxious to start practice on the grass at once, and they have, therefore, scratched from the tournament. This is a particularly sporting sacrifice on the part of McGuire, since he holds the cup for the men's singles. There are still, however, left in the lower half of this event, amongst other strong players, V. Allman Smith, D. D. O'Sullivan, T. G. McVeagh and F. H. Wilde, last season's junior champion of England.

The women's singles is bringing out a good field, and in the top half we find Miss M. French, Miss F. Pearson, a former holder, and Mrs. Blair White, who won the Irish women's open singles two years ago. In the lower half notable names are Miss P. Wallis and Mrs. R. E. Tottenham, who will be remembered as Miss Nora Daly, a participant in all the best Irish tournaments three or four years ago. All these players, as well as many others, have entered for the other championship events. The handicaps are likely to provide many strenuous contests, and a splendid week's sport on courts which are looking their best is assured.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

2.0—Ganly v. Sandys; Wilde v. A. L. Moore; Tottenham v. W. E. H. Porter; McGuire v. Hogan.

RUGBY

BARBARIANS' TOUR.

PENARTH DEFEATED.

Barbarians turned out a much weaker team than usual at Penarth, but their side included six internationals. Almost from the start, Malir and Lee made a wonderful break for the visitors, but no score resulted. Penarth had the better of the opening exchanges. Following another break Kendall scored for Barbarians, but the goal kick failed. Shortly afterwards Lee scored a penalty goal for Penarth. Malir put Barbarians further ahead with a try, and Allan converted. Coley scored again for Barbarians, and shortly afterwards Davies scored for Penarth. Five minutes before the interval Stuart scored for Barbarians, and Allan converted. In the second half Wood scored for Barbarians after a run three-quarters of the field. In the last few minutes of the game he scored again, and Allan converted. Result:—

Barbarians—3 goals, 3 tries (24 points).
Penarth—1 penalty goal, 2 tries (9 points).

THE HOSPITALS MATCH.

FREE STATE LEAGUE BEATEN.

LEINSTER LEAGUE 3 FREE STATE LEAGUE 1

At Shelbourne Park yesterday, Nolan and Hand (2) scored for the Leinster League; Byrne for the Free State League.

It was generally a poor match, the Free State backs being too sound for the much lighter Leinster League players, who were on the defence for two-thirds of the game. They defended well, however, and Metcalfe, in goal, saved several hard shots, but after the Free State side gained the lead, they never pressed home their attacks. When the Leinster League settled down, ten minutes after the interval, the match underwent a change, and the Enniscorthy forward, Nolan, was responsible for steadying his forwards and pulling the game around. The half-backs responded with a will. Nolan got through for the equalising goal twenty minutes from the interval. The success put new life into the Leinster team, who went ahead ten minutes later, Hand whipping up a smart pass from Nolan and beating Collins with a fast drive. The Free State backs were in difficulties in the closing minutes, and paid the penalty of treating their opponents lightly at the start. They made several attempts to pull off the game, but were well held by the Leinster backs, who played with judgment.

Nearing the end, Nolan, who was one of the most successful forwards, again started a good movement, which enabled Hand to increase the lead.

Free State League—Collins (Jacobs); Dunn (Drumcondra), Bermingham (Brideville); Patton (Dundalk), J. McMahon (Bohemians), Fox (Brideville); Hogan (Bray), Gaskins (Brideville), Byrne (Rovers), Reid (Brideville), Wilson (St. James's Gate).

Leinster League—Metcalfe (Richmond Rovers); Robinson (Bendigo), Doyle (Dolphin); McGrath (Ormeau), Coyne (Bendigo), W. Kissane (Bohemians); Griffiths (Shelbourne), Nolan (Enniscorthy), Hand (Dolphin), Moore (Richmond Rovers), Kavanagh (Edenville).

BOHEMIANS IN BELFAST.

CLIFTONVILLE BEATEN IN HEAVY SCORING GAME.

BOHEMIANS......... 4 CLIFTONVILLE...... 3

Although Cliftonville finished at the bottom of the Irish League table, they have been showing signs of better things recently, and put up a good display against Bohemians on Thursday evening in Belfast, the Dublin side winning by the odd goal in seven.

Cliftonville, with the wind, in the first half did most of the attacking and led at half-time by a goal, scored by Millar from a free kick ten minutes from the interval.

Bohemians found the lively ball difficult to control in the second half, but after ten minutes they equalised, McMahon beating Gardiner from a penalty kick against McGuire for hands. In eighteen minutes Bohemians went ahead, McMahon scoring from a free kick for McGuire bringing down Cleary unfairly just outside the penalty area. Two minutes later Allen equalised from McCaw's centre, but just as quickly Bohemians went in front again, White scoring direct from a corner. Cleary scored the fourth ten minutes from the close, but with five minutes to go O'Kane miskicked, and as Cannon came out Hume turned the ball into the net.

CORINTHIANS' VISIT.

An interesting feature of the Corinthians' visit to Dublin, to play Bohemians on April 26, is that the famous amateur club will include in their team a Dublin-born player—S. Goulding. Young Goulding, who is a son of Sir Lingard Goulding, is an Oxford blue, and plays at right full-back. He has been playing all this season for Corinthians, and is a very sound back.

HOCKEY.

RAILWAY UNION'S EASY WIN OVER CARTHA.

RAILWAY UNION...... 6 CARTHA.............. 0

At Park avenue yesterday the Glasgow team, Cartha, opened a short Irish tour. Although fielding four Scottish Internationals, they were not at full strength, as M'Nab, another Scottish "cap," was unable to make the journey, but they had the services of D. B. Lindsay, the old Kingstown Grammar School player.

Having only lost one game—to Edinburgh University—the visitors came with a great reputation, and a fine crowd was treated to a nice exhibition of fast, open hockey. The game was much more even than the score represents, but the Cartha attack could make little headway against Browner and O'Donoghue, whilst, as usual, the Railway forwards finished their movements with accuracy and precision. Failure on the visitors' part to close mark T. Browner and Hennessy led to a great amount of work being thrown on Dr. Currie and M'Leod, who stood up to the attack well, whilst Reid brought off several fine clearances.

After the visitors had opened strongly they were gradually driven back, and M'Leod was conspicuous with some clever kicking. A quick-taken free by Bennett saw V. Sully open the score with a great drive. Although the Scots had several bursts, they seldom became dangerous, and the Railway forwards also found it difficult to score. It was not until five minutes from the interval that, following a fine save from Reid, Chiddick scored with a hard drive (it being the Railway captain's first score of the season).

The very fast pace of the first half told on the visitors on resuming, and their defence was early in difficulties, T. Browner adding a smart goal following a brilliant save by Reid from V. Sully. V. Sully, added a couple of splendid goals, and Bennett shot through a clearance kick from Reid. The visitors have recently been playing on slow, wet pitches, and found the fast ground at Park avenue a disconcerting change.

ENGLISH FESTIVALS.

FOLKESTONE AND BOURNEMOUTH RESULTS.

Folkestone's festival opened yesterday in cold weather, with a strong wind to add to the unpleasant conditions. There are likely to be few greater surprises than that which occurred when the Buccaneers, a strong Irish team, lost to Alderley Edge by 3 goals to 1. Better combination among the forwards, however, gave the North of England side a well deserved victory. They gained a two goals lead during the first half, B. Stowell and R. W. Crummack netting, and the second half found each side scoring once, Stowell going through for Alderley, while F. M. Eager, the Irish internationalist, notched the Buccaneers' point.

At Folkestone—Swiss Wanderers 1, Nik-E-Vols 3; Buccaneers 1, Alderley Edge 3; Purley 3, Old Felstedians 1; Hounslow 3, Folkestone Optimists 4; Bucks Wanderers 4, Cheam 0; Old Marlburians 0, Ghosts 6; Wiener A.C. DAVIS V. FALKINER.

Falkiner compiled the highest break in the match so far when, at the opening of the night session, he converted his unfinished break into 900, missing a screw cannon. Afterwards he put on 73 and 149, which enabled him to lead for the first time. He went further ahead with 203 and 241, but the champion regained the advantage when at his last three innings he made 204, 557 and 56 unfinished. Closing scores:—Davis (in play), 18,402; Falkiner, 18,129.

MOTORISTS

Only two grades of Texaco Petrol are sold in the Irish Free State, vizt: "TEXACO SUPER MOTOR SPIRIT" and "TEXACO MOTOR SPIRIT."

THE PRICE OF "TEXACO MOTOR SPIRIT" has conveyed to a number of motorists in this country the erroneous idea that it is a spirit suitable for commercial vehicles only and that it must be what is commonly called:—

"COMMERCIAL" OR "No. 3" SPIRIT — IT IS NOT!

It is precisely the same product as that which is in daily use in millions of private cars throughout various countries of the world. It is a high-test Petrol of exceptional quality that ensures premium performance in any make of car.

We guarantee it—But don't take our word for it—Don't take anyone's word for it—Let your engine prove it!

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN DEALING FOR NEW ACCOUNT.

GUINNESS "RECORD" LIFTED.

Operations for the new account, 8th prox., were entered upon on Thursday, though the current settlement, 24th inst., is practically a week away yet, with the Easter holidays extending until the 22nd inst. in between. The prevailing tendency of prices indicated confidence in the immediate future, and the majority of price movements favoured holders. There was a further rush to secure Guinness Ordinary Shares at a further "record" level in recent times, and, although closing under best, all shares offered were readily absorbed. Improved prices were paid or bid for Railway Stocks. The Funds met with firm support. War Loan 4½ and 5 per cent., as well as Government National 5 per cent. Sterling Loan, will be quoted ex the June half-yearly payment in less than ten days hence. War Loan 5 per cent. Stock was actively supported. Bank of Ireland Stock recovered tone and price. Guinness opened a further 1s. 6d. a share higher, and then sales to secure profits brought about a slight set-back. Whiskey Shares were held for an advance. British and Irish Steam Pref. were held for 15s. Cork Electric Shares, and especially the Debs., were again in very short supply. Drapery and Bakery issues closed firm. Leading Tobaccos were well held. Courtaulds were quietly supported. Leyland Motors were in active request all day. Goulding Ord. show increasing strength on reports of business briskness. Unilever issues were some shillings higher on new account inquiry. Lever Bros. 7 per cent. Pref. were better at 24s. Burke Pref. and Debs., Brooks Thomas, Alex. Thom and Tirwaites issues were bid for ineffectually. The market supply of shares in the better-known local concerns is very short, as bids at and over last prices apparently do not tempt holders.

LONDON FIRM.

BREWERIES AND MOTORS GOOD.

The volume of business transacted in the London Stock markets on Thursday was naturally on a restricted scale, many members failing to put in an appearance in view of the holiday, while business in connection with the carry-over distracted attention from the usual channels. The general tone, however, was satisfactory, with a number of firm features, Motors and Breweries attracting further support, the latter on the view being expressed that the new taxation imposed on beer will be offset by cheaper prices for barley and hops.

Gilt-edged securities made a rather mixed showing, for while War Loan Fives advanced smartly, Conversion Loans, Victory Bonds and the India Stocks remained depressed. Foreign Government Stocks remained quiet, but Brazilians displayed a firmer appearance. Home Rails made some slight recovery, and Colonial and Foreign Rails strengthened here and there. Among Mines, Rhodesians and Kaffirs made a better showing.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

TAX-FREE SECURITIES.

Mr. Melville Miller, of 3 College Green, Dublin, writes:—In Thursday's issue of your paper, page 12, column 1, paragraph 2, you say: "For people not liable to the tax such securities are an advantage, because they obviate the necessity of reclaiming from the authorities." I venture to say this is misleading, as it is obvious that people who are not liable to the tax are entitled to, and should reclaim, the amount. It is my experience that investors do not always appreciate that they have a claim for the income tax on the gross amount of such dividends. If they are totally exempt they are entitled to the difference between the gross and the net amount received. What you say in to-day's issue obscures this.

THE LINOLEUM AMALGAMATION.

Barry and Staines Linoleum, Ltd. (formerly known as "Linoleum Manufacturing Company, Limited"), has completed the formalities necessary to carry through the amalgamation with Barry, Ostlere and Shepherd, Limited, holders of over 98 per cent. of the share capital in the latter company having assented to the scheme. A new company, retaining the old name of Linoleum Manufacturing Company, has been formed to acquire and carry on the Staines business. Barry and Staines Linoleum, Limited, thus becomes a holding company controlling four subsidiary companies. Steps are being taken to carry through the procedure necessary to make the bonus issue of two Ordinary shares for every five Ordinary shares held in Barry and Staines Linoleum, Limited.

CANADA'S BIG ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE.

Canada's fiscal year ended with a surplus of imports over exports of £25,800,000, this adverse balance comparing with a surplus of exports over imports in the previous year of £19,600,000. The change is due almost entirely to the decrease in the exports of wheat and flour. Wheat exports fell by £42,000,000 and flour exports by £4,000,000.

TWO DIRECTORS OF R. E. JONES REMOVED.

After lively scenes, an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders of R. E. Jones, Ltd., the caterers, at Swansea on Thursday passed a resolution removing Sir Nicholas Grattan Doyle, M.P., and Sir Thomas P. Jones, two of the directors, from office. Mr. A. Patchelor, the Chairman, and Mr. A. J. Howell were re-elected, and a resolution to appoint to the board Mr. R. A. R. Field (Chairman of Slaters and Bodega, Ltd.), who had been put forward as part-time managing director, was defeated by two votes. A poll was demanded in each case, and the result will be announced on April 25.

THE BANK RATE.

The directors of the Bank of England at their meeting on Thursday decided to make no change in the Bank rate, which, therefore, remains at 3½ per cent.

MUNICIPAL TRANSPORT RECEIPTS.

Official returns of forty of the principal municipal tramway and omnibus undertakings in the United Kingdom, as compiled by "The Tramway and Railway World," for the week ended March 29th give total receipts of £417,617, or £5,635 more than in the corresponding week of last year. The aggregate receipts for fifty-two weeks amounted to £21,534,980, an increase of £998,616 over the corresponding period of last year.

INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

BRISK TRADING.

MORE SUPPORT FOR BRITISH CELANESE.

Rates at Thursday's carry-over were much the same as on the last occasion. The general charge was 5 to 6 per cent., with Courtaulds and Dunlops done at 4 to 5 per cent. Quite a brisk trading was reported for "new time," the feature being the demand for Motor Shares on renewed rumours of amalgamation. Breweries also attracted further attention on the theory that the profitable conditions in the industry will more than offset the additional taxation imposed.

The sudden demand for Motor Shares caught the market rather short. Leylands continued the centre of interest, changing hands freely around 78s., at which they closed 3s. 6d. to the good. Thornycrofts jumped up 7s. 6d. to 77s. 6d., and Guys rose 3s. 9d. to 20s. 7½d. D. Napier Ord. were dealt in ex rights, with buyers still in evidence at the close at 12s. 6d. Austin Ord. further improved to the extent of 2s. 6d. to 37s., and Singer Ord. strengthened to 34s. 3d. National Omnibus Ord. were dealt in at 25s. ex bonus.

Iron and Steel descriptions moved within narrow limits, and Electricals were undecided.

Breweries quickly responded to a steady demand, though most of the business passing was on behalf of professional operators. All the leading shares were in evidence, but prices generally finished under the best, owing to profit-taking. Courage Ord. made the best showing on balance, with an advance of 1s. 6d. at 65s. 9d. Allsopps further improved to 26s. 9d., Guinness to 105s. 6d., Meux to 38s. 3d., Mitchell and Butlers to 54s. 9d., and Watney Defd. to 61s. 9d.

Tobaccos were fairly well maintained, but "Bats" became subject to a few scattered sales, and eased 1/16 to 5⅜. "Imps" gained a further modest fraction at 5 1/16, Carreras "A" closing firm at 9⅝.

Most of the Rayon issues presented a firm front, with additional support noticeable for British Celanese Ord., which went ahead to the extent of 2s. to 20s. 6d., the Second Pref. closing buyers at 14s. American Celanese were maintained at 3 and Courtaulds around 2⅝.

Textiles remained on the quiet side for the most part. Sewing Cottons held their improvement at 2 1/16, with Bradford Dyers steady at 27s. and Fine Spinners at 24s. 6d., but Bleachers receded to 21s. 6d. and Calico Printers came on offer at 13s. 9d.

In the Food and Catering section, sustained support was in evidence for the Unilever issues which finished with a gain of 1/16 at 3½, being inquired for around this level in the street. International Teas continued to find purchasers and left off 6d. higher at 26s. 6d., while Liptons at 5s. improved slightly.

Little disposition was seen to open up fresh commitments among the Trans-Atlantic favourites, which had a dull appearance throughout. Radio Corporations were fairly well held at 61, and buyers came forward for Canadian Marconis at 1⅛.

Cables and Wireless Stocks remained out of favour, the Pref. receding to 96 and the "A" Ord. to 55.

The Record leaders remained on the quiet side, with Vocalions 1s. lower. Banks were rather dull, but one or two Insurance shares were better.

In the Shipping department interest was almost confined to Cunards, which moved within narrow limits around 23s.

There was hardly so large a turnover in United Molasses, but support was forthcoming, and the shares left off at 5½, at which they recovered Wednesday's loss of ⅛. Imperial Chemicals added a few pence to 26s. 9d. and the Defd. hardened to 8s. 6d., while elsewhere Inveresks at 9s. 9d. were rather better. Kreuger and Toll found fresh purchasers and gained ¼ further to 33½, and Swedish Match stiffened to 17½. Dunlops finished without variation at 14s. 4½d. There was again little interest taken in this section.

RECENT ISSUE DEALINGS.

Business remained on a restricted scale, changes being few in number and negligible in quantity.

OIL SHARES ATTRACT MORE INTEREST.

Firmness characterised the commencement of business for the new account in Oil shares, and indications were not lacking of a broadening of interest. Taken as a whole, the market displayed a good tone, and at the close there was every appearance of satisfactory business next week. The Eagle issues provided outstanding features of strength, a keen demand existing for both Canadians and Mexicans, the prices of which were not slow to respond. A moderate turn-over in Shells and Royal Dutch failed to influence prices. Speculative buying of the British Controlled issues was in progress, and V.O.C. were a harder market. Trinidad issues shared in the better tendency, a further recovery occurring in Leaseholds, while Apex met with a fair demand. Lobitos continued to provide the best spot in the Miscellaneous list.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

Business in the Rubber Share market was on an even smaller scale than has been the rule recently; indeed, the market was lifeless, and a slight recovery in commodity values failed to exercise any material effect on share values, which where altered were marked a shade easier. Only moderate sales were transacted in the raw material section, but these were sufficient to bring prices to a slightly higher level. Spot and May finished at 7⅛d. per lb. after 7 3/16d., while June fetched 7 3/16d., and July to September 7⅜d. per lb. It is expected that the London stocks of rubber on Tuesday next will show an increase of some 700 tons.

HIBERNIAN INSURANCE COMPANY.

LAST YEAR'S FIGURES.

Presiding at the twenty-first ordinary annual general meeting of the Hibernian Fire and General Insurance Company, held in Dublin on last Thursday,

Mr. D. J. Cogan, the Chairman, said that Mr. Gerald Goodbody had accepted the management of the Limerick branch, in addition to his position as chairman of the local board of directors. His appointment would be a distinct advantage to the company's interests in that important area.

The net premium income of the company, said the Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, showed an increase of £12,503 over the previous year, amounting to £100,318.

PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT.

Last year, after deducting the dividend then declared, they had a balance on the profit and loss account of £18,023 15s. 6d. To this was to be added net interest received during the year amounting to £6,587 18s. 0d., transfer fees 15s., amount transferred from revenue account £4,858 10s. 11d., and the sum of £29,471 was thus obtained, being the total on the debit side of the account. On the other side, they had income tax and corporation profits tax £778 10s. 9d., leaving the balance on the profit and loss account £28,692. If they approved the directors' recommendation to distribute a dividend calculated at 5 per cent. per annum, free of income tax, which would amount to £2,000, the same as in previous years, the balance left on the account would be £26,692. In pursuance of the policy initiated by the Board two years ago in establishing a general reserve fund, they had added a sum of £5,000 to that fund, bringing it up to £15,000. This left a net sum of £21,692, which they proposed to carry forward to next account.

Mr. William Field seconded the report, which was adopted.

On the motion of Mr. Dowdall, seconded by Mr. P. A. Corrigan, a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. for the year ending the 31st December, 1929, free of income tax, was declared.

Messrs. Kean and Co., chartered accountants, were unanimously re-elected auditors.

LONDON MINING MARKET RATHER QUIET.

KAFFIRS INCLINED TO HARDEN.

There was not a great deal going on in the Mining market on Thursday. Changes on balance indicated a harder tone in Kaffirs, but trading was very restricted, the only demand being from Paris. Gold Fields marked a fractional recovery, as did Union Corporation. Rather more interest was taken in Anglo-Americans, and they more than recovered the previous day's decline, but "Johnnies" came back a few pence. Movements in Rhodesians were very slight. Paris, however, supported Chartered to a moderate extent, and they improved, but Tanks and Zams lost ground. The Northern issues remained quiet. Diamonds also experienced an idle session, and usually repeated their previous levels. The price of tin recovered 13s. 9d. per ton to £165 1s. 3d., but this had little influence on the share market. Of the Copper shares, "bear" covering in Tintos brought about a recovery, and Tharsis also rallied. Messina, however, were again sold rather heavily and relapsed further, while Mount Lyell and Indian Coppers receded. Burmas declined further, but Panamas finished a trifle to the good after being lower. Closing prices:—

IMPERIAL CHEMICAL INDUSTRIES.

INCREASED NET PROFITS.

The annual report of Imperial Chemical Industries, Limited, shows that the net profit for the year 1929, after making provision for the obsolescence and income tax, amounts to £5,780,208, which corresponds to £5,212,703 for 1928, an increase on 1928 of £567,505. With £108,807, which is the balance brought forward from 1928, less dividends paid in respect of further shares exchanged since the date of the last balance sheet, the total profit available is £5,889,015. Out of this sum the directors have decided to transfer £529,020 to general reserves, and to carry forward to 1930 £350,923, leaving £5,009,072 available for distribution to the shareholders. The directors have decided to recommend a final dividend on the Ordinary shares of 5 per cent. (actual), making 8 per cent. for the year, and a dividend on the Deferred shares of 2 per cent. (actual), both less tax at the standard rate for the year 1930-31.

The total reserves of the company at 31st December, 1929, amount to £16,725,000, as compared with £11,009,138 at the 31st December, 1928. The increase of £5,715,862 is due to the share premiums received, less expenses of issue, in respect of the new issues in May last, and to transfers out of profits of £529,020 to general reserve, and £575,479 to the central obsolescence fund. The latter fund has also been strengthened by the transfer of the obsolescence fund, amounting to £415,383, from the books of Synthetic Ammonia and Nitrates, Ltd.

As a result of the general fall in market values the aggregate book value of the company's marketable securities at the 31st December, 1929, after deducting profits realised from the sale of investments, showed an excess over market value of £983,347, which was amply covered by reserves. The directors were of opinion that in the case of the company's investments these market prices did not represent their true value, and it is satisfactory to record that the subsequent increase in market value has eliminated to a great extent the book depreciation.

An interesting innovation is the issue to shareholders, with financial report, of a small booklet descriptive of the company's products and main activities, with an outline of the company's world connections.

DUBLIN.

PRODUCE AND FOOD MARKETS.

Dublin—Cattle lower; Sheep weaker; Pigs steady. York—Cattle slow, dear trade all round. Dublin—Butter firmer; Eggs fair inquiry; Fish no demand; Vegetables good sale; Poultry brisk. Rubber dearer. Tin and Copper steadier.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (Metropolitan).—The turn-out of cattle embraced rather a plain, but mostly useful, show, but with a very minor percentage of exhibits with any pretension to up-top quality and finish. For those only was trade active; otherwise business in much the same routine as before, and many useful drafts of beasts were to be seen at a late hour yet without buyers' marks.

Numbers on sale this week compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1928.	1929.
Beasts	2,475 decrease 295	2,092	2,410
Sheep	5,385 increase 986	4,896	5,222
Veal Calves	—— decrease 4	3	4

Market proved better for real quality beasts suitable to leading home victuallers, more especially concerning the smaller weight heifers and steers; but these proved a very small percentage of offerings, and figured from, says, 51s. to 52s. 6d. or 53s. per cwt.; a few drafts of supergrade blacks, 54s.; commercial cattle, 46s. to 48s. and 49s.; rougher sorts, 43s. to 44s.

In the beef cow section trade was fully up to that of last week, if anything a shade better for prime-meated young sorts. Best qualities, 37s. to 39s. and 42s. per cwt.; medium sorts, 32s. to 35s. and 36s.; old and leaner sorts, 24s. to 29s. and 30s. Bulls were cleared satisfactorily at 35s. to 42s., according to class.

DUBLIN DAIRY COWS.—The offering of dairy cattle here embraced 297 exhibits, being 41 more than last week; buyers were in good attendance, but trade, nevertheless, lacked energy and biddings were slow after the sale of prime lots on offer. Choice £24 to £28, mediums £20 to £22, others £13 to £19. The sheep market in point of values recorded practically no quotable change; trade on the whole ruled slow and tedious. Only the choice qualities of handy weights were encouragingly bid for; after the disposal of these lots bidding was slow; some lots of lambs and sheep of the poorer class were unbid for at the finish of the market. Choice mutton (per lb.) 11½d. to 1/1½, extra 1/2, other qualities 9½d. to 10½d. and 11d.; lambs (per head) 35/- to 63/-, in one case 67/6.

DUBLIN PIG.—Pig market of narrower dimensions—viz., 787 head of swine, or 34 less than previous day, with choice quality hogs of bacon and pork weights scarce and the smaller numbers on offer. Salesmen were able to make a satisfactory clearance at:—Bacon pigs prime per cwt.) 94/- to 98/-, porkers 100/- to 102/- and 105/-, other sorts 88/- to 90/-; sows 63/- to 66/- and 68/-; slips and bonhams 28/- to 45/- and 50/-.

YORK.—Large offer of Irish cattle, mostly short of flesh, though fair number of good quality. Slow, dear trade at late rates. Few English steers from moors met slow trade. Average entry dairy cattle, but of buyers few in number and reductions 10/- to 20/- per head to effect sales. Sheep trade very slow.

GRAIN.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC).—The Baltic Exchange will be closed until Tuesday morning. Futures opened firmer in sympathy with North American closing cables, but with sellers more in evidence. Prices subsequently eased: Manitoba grade May 38/11, July 39/4½, London May 36/1, July 36/5. Liverpool options irregular, the initial advance being lost under selling orders from Canada: May 7/8⅞, July 7/10⅞, October 8/1. MAIZE—Cargoes quiet, but prices firmly held: Plate April 28th clearance sellers 26/9, April 26/9, May 15th 26/6, May-June 26/-. CARDIFF.—There has been more activity owing to the usual holiday demand, but supplies of bacon have been fairly ample, resulting in lower prices for Danish. Butter is rather steadier. Wholesale quotations, delivered in Cardiff district:—Bacon—Irish, baled, 132/- to 134/-; Danish, 106/- to 110/-; Canadian Wiltshires, 99/- to 103/-; American not offered. Hams—Irish not offered. 120. Poultry—Irish chickens, 11d. to 1/1 per lb.; hens, 6d. to 8d.

BRISTOL.—Bacon—The demand has been well maintained, and prices generally ruled steady, with an active trade in gammons, fores, and streaks. American bellies sold rather more readily than of late. Hams—Short-cut had a steady trade at recent rates. Lard was in fair demand at steady prices. Cheese—Canadian sold well at recent full rates, but New Zealand was barely steady owing to a disappointing demand. Butter—Following the recent decline prices are steadier, but the demand leaves much to be desired.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE.—Good supply and good all-round demand at:—York cabbage 35/- to 60/- and 88/- per load, Savoy 30/- to 90/- and 100/-, Swede turnips 1/- to 1/3 per cwt., mangolds 1/- per cwt., Rhubarb 3/- to 5/6 per doz.; cauliflowers 2/- to 2/9 per doz., carrots 1/9 to 2/6 per doz., parsnips 1/6 to 2/- per doz., 5/- to 6/- per bag; scallions 6d. to 8d. per bunch, leeks 1/- per doz., thyme 1/- to 2/- per doz., and white turnips 6d. to 8d. per bunch.

DUBLIN POULTRY.—Good supply of all classes. Keen Easter demand for all kinds of choice quality stuff. Chickens 1/3 to 1/4 per lb., hens, large fat, 2/6 to 3/6 each, smalls 1/6 to 2/-; ducklings, fatted, 3/6 to 4/6, old 1/6 to 2/6; rabbits 1/- to 1/4 each. Turkeys out of season.

DUBLIN EGG AND BUTTER.—Demand good for creamery butter, and market firmer. Cold weather leaving growth backward and retarding increase of Irish supplies. May sellers 127/6, August 132/-. RUBBER steady, with moderate sales; sheet spot and May sold 7 7-16d. to 7½d., June 7 9-16d., July-September 7¾d., October December 8d., January-March 8¼d. OILCAKES, etc.—Linseed cakes: The market having been poorly attended during the week, as is usual at this season of the year, and with very little new business passing, prices generally are on the easy side. At the same time stocks remain extremely small, and, in view of the disturbed state in India—which, for the moment, may be looked upon as the chief source of supply—there is every possibility that shipments in this direction may be considerably curtailed, and consequently values are not likely to suffer any serious setback in the near future. Best London-made met a steady retail inquiry at about last week's quotation of £10 15/- to £11, while the finest quality Calcutta may be bought at £11, and some kibbled Grecian in bags with 12 per cent oil at £11 to £11 5/-. Cotton Cakes—Egyptian did not offer on spot, but there were secondhand sellers of April shipments at £4 18/9 to £5, ex ship terms, and May and June at £5 to £5 1/3, and at these prices they should be an attractive proposition, being a reduction of £2 per ton during the last few months. English makes sold rather more freely at the enhanced values of £5 10/- to £5 12/6.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MANCHESTER HAY AND STRAW.—Market of holiday character, but values both hay and straw well maintained. General quotations—Lincolnshire rye grass and clover £7, oat straw 85/-, wheat straw 80/-, all delivered Manchester. Canadian mixed timothy and clover £6 per ton ex-quay.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. GANLY, SONS AND CO.

For this week's sale a large number of very fine cattle were sent forward, consigned direct by many well-known feeders. Although there was a large attendance of buyers present, trade was not so keen as last week. However, all good cattle changed hands at prices similar to last week, but secondary quality were hard to place, and a clearance could not be effected. Horned bullocks and heifers made from 43/- to 49/- per cwt. Polly bullocks, 44/- to 49/- per cwt. Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford cross bullocks and heifers, 47/- to 50/- per cwt. The top live-weight quotation (52/- per cwt.) was obtained for a choice pen of Aberdeen-Angus bullocks, the property of Major E. M. Conolly, and a consignment of the same class from A. E. Eustace were 52/- per cwt.

MESSRS. R. AND J. WILKINSON.

The supply of store cattle varied little from last week. The attendance of buyers, although representative, was scarcely as large, the harsh weather, no doubt, having some influence. The entries included some nice drafts of stock from Counties Tipperary, Kilkenny, Roscommon, etc., of which the best were some pens of Aberdeen-Angus crosses and Hereford crosses, both bullocks and heifers. For these there was spirited bidding, resulting in prices fully on a level with those of recent weeks. The following were the principal transactions:—A.A. and Hereford crosses, £19 10/- (50/-) £18 5/- (51/-), £17 17/6 (50/-), £17 7/6 (51/- and 50/-), £16 15/- (51/-) £16 10/- (50/-), £16 5/ (50/-), £16 17/6 (50/-), £15 15/- (50/-), £15 5/- (49/-), etc.; shorthorn bullocks at £19 15/ were 44/-, and others at £19 (47/6 per cwt.). Heifers at £18 2/6 were 50/- per cwt. For the moderate lots and younger cattle, which did not show much merit, there was a limited demand at easier prices, and in some cases failed to realise owners' expectations.

MESSRS. GAVIN LOW, LTD.

The number of cattle forward for Thursday's sale was about the same as last week, but buyers were not so numerous, chiefly owing to the harsh weather and scarcity of keep. However, all good lots, particularly the A.A. and Hereford crosses, changed hands at late rates. Secondary sorts experienced a dragging trade, with prices favouring buyers, and some lots remained unsold. The top price of the sale, 53/- per cwt., was realised for a pen of choice Hereford cross heifers, the property of Mr. John Egan. Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford crosses made from £18 10/- to £12 5/-, or from 55/- to 45/- per cwt., horned bullocks and heifers from £19 to £13 15/-, or from 41/- to 48/- per cwt.

The 'Scour Specific'

The infallible cure and never-failing preventive for Scour in Calves, Cattle and Sheep. Used by State Agricultural College, Canada, and throughout the world.

EXTRACT FROM TESTIMONIALS.
JAS. BYRNE, Esq., Wallstown Castle—
"It is a most invaluable remedy for 'Scour' in Calves, a disease which has hitherto baffled veterinary skill."
H. E. TURNER, Esq., Payne's End, Tring—
"I find it quite the best remedy and have used it successfully in cases where all other remedies have failed. I consider it a boon to anyone rearing Calves."
E. W. HALL, Esq., Kill-o'-Grange, Blackrock—
"The Calf, a pure-bred Jersey, which I am keeping for breeding, was so far gone that it was lying unable to rise and grinding its teeth for death, as I thought. I gave it four large teaspoonfuls the first time, and next day it was up on its feet, and is now past danger. Your medicine should be better known."

FORTFIELD HOUSE, TEMPLEOGUE.

THE FRONT OF THE HOUSE.

A GENTLEMAN'S COUNTRY RESIDENCE, 4 miles from the heart of the city, and standing detached on about 69 acres Statute. A non-basement House, in an excellent state of preservation, having been originally soundly constructed and well cared and maintained since erection. The exterior porch is carried on four massive cut stone columns, and leads into a spacious entrance hall, measuring 36 feet by 20 feet, the carved and richly ornate ceiling of which is supported by four decorated columns. On either side of the hall are the morning room and the study; off the inner hall is the diningroom, measuring 30 x 20, with shaped alcoves; a wide staircase, on which there are 3 lead light windows of Heraldic design, leads to the next floor, on which there are ante room and drawingroom, 30 feet by 21 feet; three bedrooms and three dressingrooms, two of which are fitted with w.c.'s. On the top floor there are 3 bedrooms with dressingrooms off, and 3 other bedrooms and w.c. There is also a servants staircase. The domestic apartments are cut off from the house and contain large kitchen, six servants' rooms, servants' hall and pantries, etc. In the inner yard there is garage accommodation for four cars, stabling for six horses, and coachman's house. The farmyard contains cattle house, stabling, corn house and hay barn. Walled-in garden with glasshouses, also vegetable garden with steward's house, containing 5 rooms and kitchen. There are two gate lodges. The gardens are fully cultivated, and the pleasure grounds, which have been well cared, are most picturesque, the stream which leads from the oak grove to the lake being bridged at intervals. The Land is first quality grazing land and is much in demand by graziers and dairymen in the district. All the fences and gates are in first class order.

The Auctioneers confidently recommend this property to the attention of would-be buyers. Notwithstanding the accommodation contained in the house, it is an easy house to manage, there being no underground rooms or passages. On account of the manner in which the grounds are laid out, and the fine timber in the groves and on the boundaries, this property will appeal to those seeking a self-contained demesne in close proximity to the city.

The Property comprises 102 Statute Acres, or thereabouts, of which 69 Statute Acres are in hands. The entire Property is held subject to Fee-farm and judicial rents amounting to £530 13s. 0d. per annum, with the benefit of Fee-farm and other rents amounting to £299 10s. 3d., leaving the Property subject to the net rent of £231 2s. 9d. P.L. Valuation, £278.

The Property can not be inspected, save by special appointment with the Auctioneers.

Further photographs of the House, the Bossi mantelpiece, the decorative ceilings, and various views of the grounds can be seen at the Auctioneers' Offices.
